

BEGG LEADS COOPER FOR GOVERNOR

COUNTY INCUMBENTS RE-NOMINATED

OPPOSENTS FAIL IN CONTESTS; HERE FAVOR COOPER

Judge Wright, Prosecutor Marshall And Surveyor Davis Re-Nominated; North Apparently Third In Commission Race.

Greene County voters favored Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, Republican, and Congressman Martin L. Davey, Kent, Democrat, for the gubernatorial nomination of their respective parties and helped nominate candidates for county, district and judicial offices at Tuesday's primary election.

With unofficial returns compiled from forty-four out of forty-eight precincts, Cooper was leading Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, his nearest opponent, by a vote of 2,743 to 1,280. Attorney General Edward C. Turner was a poor third with 490.

Davey was running a neck and neck race with Beatty for the Democratic nomination for governor. With eighteen out of forty-eight precincts reporting, Davey held a slim lead of three votes, 106 to 103.

Returns from all but four of the county's precincts indicate that all county officials opposed for re-nomination had won decisive victories over opponents.

S. C. Wright, seeking reelection for a second term as Judge of Probate Court, was re-nominated over Mayor John W. Prugh, Xenia, with an apparent plurality of nearly 900 votes.

J. Carl Marshall seeking his third term as prosecuting attorney, was leading his opponent, William H. Howard, Xenia attorney, by 300 votes for the nomination.

By a majority of about 700 votes, William J. Davis was re-nominated for county surveyor over Harry Sparks, former Xenia city engineer.

John A. North, former county commissioner and running for his second term, had apparently lost the nomination in a close race with A. E. Beam and J. Harve Lackey, incumbents, running for their second terms. Beam was leading Lackey by 150 votes and North trailed Lackey by 150.

Carrington T. Marshall, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, was given a majority approaching 900 votes over former Senator Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland, his closest opponent, for the Republican short term senatorial nomination.

Senator Cyrus Locher, appointed by Governor Donahay to succeed the late Frank B. Willis in the United States senate, was running six hundred votes ahead of Graham P. Hunt, Cincinnati attorney, in their contest for the Democratic short term senatorial nomination.

For the Democratic nomination for the long term senatorial choice, Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture, led former Congressman George White, Marietta, by almost a 3 to 1 majority.

For the Republican nomination for attorney general, Clinton D. Boyd, Middletown, received better than a 2 to 1 majority over Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, his closest rival.

State Representative John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg, led the parade of candidates for the long term Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. His advantage over George C. Braden, Warren, stood at approximately 1,000 votes.

For the Democratic nomination for the long term lieutenant governor, Llewellyn E. Butler, Dayton, was leading over Governor Donahay, had a substantial lead over George S. Myers, of Cleveland.

Edwin Reed, Delaware, had a lead of 350 votes over George C. Braden, Warren, for the short term Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. There was no Democratic candidate for this nomination.

Bert B. Buckley, incumbent, also had no opposition for the Republican nomination for state treasurer. On the Democratic side, Fred M. Bushnell, Mansfield, was favored over James Patrick Mangin, Cleveland.

State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy was making a run-away race out of his contest with Stanley Cherrington, Columbus, leading his opponent by a 5 to 1 ratio.

Daniel E. Butler, Toledo, held a slight lead over six other candidates for the Democratic nomination for state auditor.

For Supreme Court Judge, Geiger and Day won the Republican nominations, and Dunlavy and Monnett, the Democratic nominations, there being no contests.

As far as other local races are concerned the following Republican candidates were unopposed for re-nomination: R. D. Williamson, for state representative; Harvey Elam, for clerk of courts; Homer Tate for sheriff; Miss Helen Dodds for county treasurer; Dr. F. M. Chambliss for coroner. Dr. W. T. Ungard had no opposition for the Democratic nomination for

AN EVENLY DIVIDED COMMITTEE MAY BE OUTCOME OF VOTING

Party Control May Hinge On Status Of Independent.

Unofficial returns from Tuesday's primary voting indicate that control of the Greene County Republican Central Committee may be evenly divided between the two dominating political factions, the Marshall-Gowdy faction and the anti-Marshall group.

The Marshall-Gowdy faction, one time dominant in party councils here, is believed to have won at least twelve, or half of the twenty-four places on the committee, while the anti-Marshall group is conceded eleven places. The party affiliation of the one remaining successful central committee candidate is said to be doubtful.

The official count of precincts, may, however, change the result in several close committee races.

Leaders of the Marshall-Gowdy group claim victory in thirteen places, which would shift party control by two votes. The anti-Marshall faction, which has held factional control for the last two years, refuses, however, to concede defeat, awaiting the official count and a determining of the factional status of Harry Hagler, New Jasper Twp., who is said to be independent.

The anti-Marshall group candidates were unopposed in five places and three Marshall faction candidates were without opposition, leaving sixteen places contested. Of these the Marshall-Gowdy group won at least nine and the anti-Marshall group at least six.

Following are believed to be the winning central committee candidates according to their factional affiliation:

Anti-Marshall Group
Beaver Creek Twp., Joseph Coy; Caesar Creek Twp., H. M. Smith; Cedarville Twp., A. H. Creswell; Miami Twp., Ed Meredith; Silver Creek Twp., John Q. Ross; Bellbrook, W. W. Tate; Bowersville, H. C. Fisher; Cedarville village, H. C. Lewis; Yellow Springs, J. N. Wolford; Xenia city first ward, George McDonnell; Xenia city third ward, William A. Fisher.

Marshall Group
Bath Twp., H. R. Armstrong; Jefferson Twp., A. B. Lewis; Ross Twp., Frank C. Lackey; Spring Valley Twp., A. C. Mendenhall; Sugar Creek Twp., Walton Spahr; Xenia Twp., J. B. Conklin; Fairfield, C. F. Snediker; Jamestown, Charles Moorman; Osborn, F. A. Kendig; Spring Valley village, W. E. Crites; Xenia city second ward, S. W. Guyton; Xenia city fourth ward, Philip Thomas.

Independent
New Jasper Twp., Harry Hagler.

PRECINCT PRIMARY OFFICIALS CAUGHT IN ALLEGED FRAUDS

Five Accused Of Barring Challengers From Booths

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—Five precinct election judges were ordered arrested here today and warrants were to be issued for a number of others, following one of the most turbulent election days in Cleveland history.

The warrants were sworn to by members of the honest elections committee of the Cleveland Bar Association, charging that qualified challengers, sent out by the committee, were barred from voting booths by precinct judges in various parts of the city.

Those arrested were: W. J. Prohn, John Schram, Milton Watkins, Louis Vincour, and Walter Brown. Harley Doncaster, chairman of the committee said many additional warrants would be issued today.

The warrants were issued by a justice and served by a constable. Sharp arguments occurred at a number of precincts, the judges refusing to go with the constable until the polls closed.

Policemen stationed at the booths supported the judges in these wrangles in several instances.

MRS. JACK KEARNS IS SERIOUSLY ILL

LONG BEACH, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Believed to have been poisoned by something she had eaten, Mrs. Legana Kearns, wife of Jack Kearns, was said to be in a critical condition at Long Beach Hospital today.

Jack Dempsey endeavored to see Mrs. Kearns but physicians attending her informed him that no one would be admitted to the sick room. Dempsey then ordered one of his representatives to go to the hospital to see that everything possible be done to make her comfortable.

The former heavyweight champion knew Mrs. Kearns when both were in vaudeville and has remained on friendly terms with her despite his break with her husband.

Three boys from Dayton, occupants of a Nehi Bottling Works truck, Dayton, received painful cuts and bruises when the truck overturned in a ditch near Jamestown, Tuesday night.

Names of the three boys could not be learned. Dr. A. D. Ritenour, Jamestown, dressed their injuries.

THESE CANDIDATES APPARENTLY SUCCESSFUL

James T. Begg, Republican and Martin L. Davey, Democrat, were apparently selected by their respective parties Tuesday to oppose each other in the November gubernatorial race. Republicans nominated Congressman Theodore Burton, former senator, for the short term of U. S. senator created by the death of Frank B. Willis. Charles V. Truax, state agriculture director, has apparently won the Democratic nomination for long term as U. S. senator to oppose Senator S. D. Fess.

HOOVER DRY STAND REVEALED BY STATEMENTS YEARS AGO

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 15.—The American people can expect a bone-dry enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act to provide stricter enforcement of prohibition if Herbert Hoover is elected president, it was learned today on the highest authority.

All doubt over the Republican nominee's dryness was dissipated through the discovery of two Hoover utterances on prohibition, made back in 1918 under wartime law. A "tempest in a teapot" controversy had raged here since Sunday due to a "wet" interpretation placed on Hoover's prohibition declaration, by one of his closest political advisers. His dryness, however, had been announced by International News Service on July 25.

The 1918 utterances revealed Hoover as a strict prohibitionist, as a man who sought to establish temperance in America and as one who deplored the drinking of intoxicating liquors. He announced himself flatly as a "lifelong believer in national temperance."

The utterances, a public statement and a letter to Senator Morris Sheppard (D) of Texas, placed Hoover in the category of the "bone-dry."

If any further doubt might exist as to his dryness, it would disappear through the action of Daniel A. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald and president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, in endorsing his acceptance speech declaration on prohibition. Poling, one of the outstanding dry leaders wired Hoover:

"It was economically sound, morally right and a challenge to the highest patriotism. The campaign has all the proportions of a crusade. We shall follow you with enthusiasm."

The letter to Senator Sheppard was written July 4, 1918, in reply to a request from the Texas that Hoover, as food administrator, close breweries throughout the country.

"If brewing is stopped," Hoover replied, "beer would disappear from the liquor trade within one or two months and the whole country would be put practically on a whiskey, brandy and gin basis, with some supplies of wine. The saloons would be left open and upon a basis of selling drinks carrying 40 to 50 per cent of alcohol, with some supplies of wine, instead of a large proportion of their customers being served with a drink 2-3 per cent alcoholic content, and therefore, from a temperance viewpoint, much less harmful."

It raises the very serious moral problem as to whether infinitely more damage will not result from such action than in a continuation of the use of this limited amount of foodstuffs in brewing. It does appear to me that the losses in food are entirely secondary to the moral and physical dangers.

"You are probably aware that I have been a lifelong believer in national temperance."

The trio had finished painting the residence on the farm and had begun on the barn when the accident occurred.

O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, investigated the accident. Dr. F. M. Chambliss was summoned and brought the injured man to the Xenia hospital.

THEODORE BURTON

PAINTER DIES FROM HURTS IN FALL TUESDAY

Harold Humphrey, 38, Painter, Receives Fatal Injuries.

Harold Humphrey, 38, 8 Miami Ave., died at McClellan Hospital Wednesday morning at 10:30 from injuries received when he fell from a ladder while painting a barn on a farm owned by Frank A. Byers, 421 Bellbrook Ave., near Wilberforce, early Tuesday afternoon.

He was brought to McClellan Hospital, Xenia, where an examination disclosed a skull fracture. He was rendered unconscious in the fall, and did not regain consciousness before his death.

The ladder on which Humphrey was standing slipped from its position and knocked over two other ladders on which two fellow painters were standing.

Taylor Humphrey, 41, New Jasper Twp., a brother, suffered an injury to the right foot, and Mervile Baughn, 29, also of New Jasper, was bruised and shaken. Neither, however, required hospital attention.

The trio had finished painting the residence on the farm and had begun on the barn when the accident occurred.

O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, investigated the accident. Dr. F. M. Chambliss was summoned and brought the injured man to the Xenia hospital.

LATE RETURNS PLACE SANDUSKIAN AHEAD; DAVEY IS NOMINATED

Republican Gubernatorial Race Is Close; Brown, Burton, Tracy, Bettman, Truax, Hunt Among Primary Victors

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15.—Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, apparent Republican nominee for governor of Ohio, was leading Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, by 13,284 votes in a tabulation of unofficial returns from yesterday's primary election, announced by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown at 8 o'clock this morning.

Congressman Martin L. Davey, Kent, appeared to have won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination easily. Unofficial figures at the secretary of state's office at 8 a. m., gave Davey a lead of 34,168 over Commerce Director Earl D. Bloom.

Unofficial returns received at the secretary of state's office from 6,994 of the 8,735 precincts in Ohio gave:

Begg, 138,021; Cooper, 185,737.

Although these figures give Begg a lead of 13,384 over Cooper, state election officials estimated that the final unofficial tabulation probably will give Begg a lead of about 12,000 in view of the fact that some of the missing precincts are in territory where Cooper is ahead. The late returns were expected to reduce Begg's lead somewhat.

November, will choose the officials who will take office next year.

Republican gubernatorial nominees: J. Begg, Sandusky; T. Brown, Cincinnati; Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland, for short term, and U. S. Senator Charles V. Truax, Columbus, re-nominated without opposition for full term.

For secretary of state: Clarence J. Brown, Lancaster, re-nominated without opposition.

For auditor of state: Joseph T. Tracy, Portsmouth, re-nominated.

For state treasurer: Earl D. Buckley, Dayton, re-nominated without opposition.

For attorney general: Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati.

Democrat for governor: Martin L. Davey, Sandusky; For lieutenant governor: George S. Myers.

For secretary of state: Carl W. Smith; For state treasurer: Earl D. Buckley; For state auditor: Daniel E. Butler; For attorney general: Gilbert Bettman.

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown indicated that he might require a tabulation of the complete official returns of tomorrow as result of the race between Begg and Cooper. These official returns it was stated, will not be available for a couple of days at least.

The secretary of state's office this morning gave the following results:

Republican, 6,426 precincts out of 8,735 given.

For governor: Cooper, 13,284; Begg, 13,384; Turner, 490.

For lieutenant governor: full term—Braden, 9,939; Brown, 145; McKinley, 36,939; for unexpired term: Braden, 13,313; Reed, 126,918.

For state auditor: Tracy, 253,781; Cherrington, 69,154.

For attorney general: Bettman, 79,435; Bricker, 11,061; Price, 61,956.

For U. S. senator (unexpired term): Burton, 176,343; Marshall, 99,961.

Votes for uncontested offices, including secretary of state, state treasurer, U. S. senator, full term, and judges of the Ohio Supreme Court, will not be tabulated.

Democrat: 5,786, precincts give: For governor: Bloom, 29,475; Davey, 33,643; Witt, 20,375.

For lieutenant governor: for full term—Myers, 55,326; Pickrel, 51,505.

For secretary of state: Newman, 43,482; Smith, 51,505.

For state auditor: Butler, 32,529; Ferguson, 17,320; Kauffman, 20,148; Riddle, 16,152.

For state treasurer: Bushnell, 55,486; Mangin, 41,991.

For U. S. Senator: for full term: Truax, 44,949; White, 32,795. For unexpired term: Hunt, 52,663; Locher, 49,354.

Democratic votes for attorney general and for judges of the Ohio Supreme Court were not tabulated, there being no contests.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The proposed debate on morality between Governor Alfred E. Smith and Rev. John Straton probably will not be held, it appeared today, because the two principal speakers are unable to agree upon a meeting place.

Answering the ultimatum of the Democratic presidential nominee that the debate be held in Dr. Straton's Calvary Baptist Church here or not at all, Dr. Straton reiterated today at his summer home at Greenwood Lake that this was impossible but declared that he would present his side of the case in some large hall whether or not the governor appeared to defend himself.

The Rev. Straton informed reporters that Governor Smith's reply was "just childish."

"I am not going to allow Governor Smith to run away from a fight," he said. "I will hire the largest hall I can get and go ahead with the debate anyhow."

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 15.—The world's newest and biggest Zeppelin, the "Count Zeppelin," will make its first trial flight on or about Monday, Sept. 3, it was learned today.

If the trial flights are successful and weather conditions are favorable the glimmers of the skies may leave Friedrichshafen for Lakehurst, N. J., on Sept. 10.

The tests have been delayed by unforeseen difficulties. Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Zeppelin works and builder of the dirigible, has been ill and is going to Switzerland for a two weeks' holiday.

GREETINGS and REGRETS

The Xenia Retail Merchants Association today regrets the retirement of a leading Xenia merchant and extends a welcome to his successors.

Charles L. Jobe, for many years a stalwart in the commercial life of Xenia, has chosen to drop from active business life.

For forty years the name of Jobe Bros., has been a symbol of integrity in business dealings and a guarantee of quality merchandise. Now the final gesture of his business career is a guarantee that the name of Jobe Bros., will not only be perpetuated, but that it will continue to symbolize the ideals upon which it was founded forty years ago.

C. L. Jobe's contribution to Xenia's business life has been an example of integrity, of honesty and of dignity in merchandising.

Now it is given to him on retiring, the satisfaction of knowing that things for which he stood will be perpetuated. He has wisely chosen his successors so that the name of Jobe Bros., shall not fall upon evil days but will still be flaunted proudly among the leaders of Xenia's commercial interests. Perhaps the finest compliment paid Mr. Jobe is the tribute of a leading competitor, that he has always been fair in his business dealings, friendly and ever willing to cooperate. Thus is true sportsmanship carried into the world of business.

Xenia merchants welcome the new owners of the Jobe Bros., store proud of the tribute that has been paid Xenia by the choice of these men in coming here.

Because these three men of wide merchandising experience have chosen to invest their time and money here they have indirectly paid a great compliment to Xenia. When these men find in Xenia the spirit that indicates a future that will advance their interests, there is no cause for Xenians to be alarmed.

The confidence shown by the new owners in the future of Xenia, endorsing as it does the confidence that has already been shown by other Xenia merchants, should help strengthen the faith of Xenians in their city.

The merchants association likes to think of Xenia merchants as presenting a strong and united front in defense of Xenia against its common enemies—lack of civic spirit and the tendency to shop elsewhere. In this regard it is good to know that in the place vacated by one leader retiring from business there will stand others who by their very investment here, indicate a confidence in Xenia that guarantees that this united front will not be broken.

And so the merchants' association today wants to congratulate C. L. Jobe on the satisfaction that must be his in retiring gracefully with the knowledge that his name and his ideals will carry on.

This association hopes that he will enjoy the rest from business cares that forty years of the vicissitudes of a merchandising career have earned for him, but that he will not deny Xenia the benefit of his mature judgment in the counsels of her merchants.

To James A. King, Chicago; H. Renick Boggs, Washington C. H., and Earl E. Mann, Bloomington, Ill., this association extends congratulations on the wisdom of their choice in acquiring such a valuable merchandising property in a city wide-awake to the advantages of the small town. It welcomes the firm in the conviction that here can and will be built a bigger, better city and it invites them cordially to assist in the task.

WILBUR RUDDICK IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Wilbur Ruddick, 49, died at the Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, from heart trouble, from which he had suffered some time.

Mr. Ruddick, who was employed at the Smoke House, S. Detroit St., entered the hospital last Sunday when his condition became serious.

He was born in Greene County and spent all his life here. He made his home for the past six years at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orle Harness, E. Second St. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Rosa Ruddick, Bowersville; three children: Mrs. Agnes Hogue, Springfield; Russell Ruddick, Dayton and Carroll Ruddick, Bowersville and one sister, Mrs. Roscoe Tidd, near Jamestown.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1 p. m., at the United Brethren Church with burial in the Jamestown Cemetery. Friends may call after 6 p. m. Wednesday at the Neeld Funeral Parlor.

HEAVY VOTE MARKED PRIMARY IN COUNTY

Fair weather and a number of interesting local and state contests resulted in Greene County recording one of the heaviest primary votes in its history at Tuesday's election, officials of the board of elections announce.

In one way, the ideal weather proved a slight drawback for the vote in the rural districts was not as heavy as it would possibly have been had weather conditions been adverse.

It is estimated that 5,000 Republican and 350 Democratic votes were cast, much the largest primary vote in recent years in Greene County.

Voters evinced a keen interest in the election and flocked to the polls in great numbers, particularly in Xenia city. No disorders of any kind were reported to authorities.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. CHARLES CONKLIN

Mrs. Sally M. Conklin, 69, widow of Charles O. Conklin, died at her home near Eleazer at 11:45 o'clock Tuesday night. She had been bed-fast since last April 8 and previously had been in poor health.

Mrs. Conklin was born near Lumberton, the daughter of Joshua and Mary M. McKay Oglesbee. Mrs. Conklin's husband preceded her in death in December, 1922.

Surviving are three sons, Herbert H. and A. A. Conklin, both of Xenia; one daughter, Mrs. Floyd Weaver, at home; one brother, Horace Oglesbee, Dayton, O.; thirteen grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 o'clock at the home and again at 2 o'clock at the Lumberton M. E. Church, of which she was a member, Friday afternoon. Burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery.

BOYD G. HOPPING REMOVED BY DEATH

Following an extended illness, Boyd Gowdy Hopping, 55, retired farmer, passed away at his home on the Upper Bellbrook Pike at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night. He had been in failing health for a year and his condition took a serious turn last June.

Mr. Hopping was born June 13, 1843. He had always lived in that vicinity.

He is survived by three sons.

John and David, both of Xenia, and William, Dayton, O., and four grand children. He was a United Presbyterian in faith.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Interment will be made in Woodland Cemetery.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE LAW OF THE LORD IS PERFECT—Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son; but he that is a companion of riotous men shameth his father.—Prov. 28:7.

CUBA MAY EXPERIMENT

The National Board of Sanitation of Cuba has approved a plan for using convicts in laboratory experiments looking toward the cure of cancer. If the measure obtains the approval of the Cuban congress the world may see some interesting use made of men who have been condemned to death for murder.

In the Cuban proposal only cancer experiments are included. It provides that convicts condemned to death may be allowed to live if they voluntarily agree to permit themselves to be used in cancer experiments for 12 years. Those still living at the end of that period will be given their freedom.

The Cuban proposal is in line with suggestions frequently made. Convicts who have forfeited their lives under our laws, could be given the option of death or life imprisonment for medical and surgical research.

An association might be formed in this country to work for uniform state laws governing punishment for murder in the first degree. Every prisoner accepting life imprisonment instead of electrocution would do so with the knowledge that he was to be available at all times for medical and surgical research and experimentation.

Of course the experiments would have to be always under the supervision of the American Medical Association and similarly responsible high-grade associations or foundations. Many prisoners subjected to intelligent experimentation would live to ripe old age, and would never suffer serious inconvenience because of their service, involuntary perhaps, to mankind. Others would die of diseases instead of by electrocution, but since they had taken life they would be paying a just debt in a helpful way, instead of merely losing life as punishment.

WAILING TO THE WORLD

From his place of exile, Trotsky, that somewhat shabby hero of Communism, manages to make himself heard from time to time. Somehow, the material for another of his familiar outpourings has been brought out of Russia and put within the cover of a book. His "The Real Situation in Russia" is concerned mainly with his quarrel with Stalin, and must be regarded as a Russian political document. For the moment, at least, Joseph Stalin has overwhelmed Leon Trotsky, and Trotsky wails to the world about it.

Outside of Russia, the principal interest in Trotsky's book will be in his prediction that a world attack against Russia is "not only probable but inevitable." He has a great fear that capitalism will invade Russia to make for itself new markets. He is afraid the failure of the Reds in China and in the British general strike will hasten the day. He holds, also, that the "domestic difficulties in the Soviet Union" have encouraged the Soviet's foes.

Trotsky a few years ago was insisting that all the world was about to be made Communist by the "world revolution." His new predictions are about upon a par with his older forecasts. He may be a Communist politician of parts, but as a world prophet he grades around zero-minus.

MIXED IMPULSES

A New York pickpocket with a record of 25 arrests and ten convictions was recently sent over the road once more. It is learned that he used the proceeds of his thievery to send one son to college and to keep another in high school. He had a father's heart and a normal father's impulse to do as well as he could by his children. Sense of moral responsibility and sense of justice seemed to be lacking. Some people seem to be born with mental parts missing. Unfortunately there is no general parts factory from which they can be supplied. Some are born with the wrong parts. They suffer all their lives from mixed impulses. They are deserving of our charity.

PERILOUS CHEMISTRY

Chemistry may disarrange our world of affairs in queer fashion. Chemists may one day turn lead into gold by re-arranging the atoms. By releasing new forces, finding new sources of power, they may junk gas and coal and the old means of power. They may make gold so cheap that the financial system of the world will be upset. Our belief in gold is a striking example of confidence in things unseen. We believe great quantities of it are laid away in the vaults of the United States treasury and sub-treasuries. On the presence of that gold rests the currency plan of the republic. Paper money is good because the gold is there—or rather because we believe the gold is there. Suppose somebody in the night changed it all to lead bars. If we didn't know about it what difference would it make?

BUSINESS AND PEACE

Sinclair Lewis who has had much fun throwing rocks at American business men, Rotary clubs, and various other manifestations of American life, shows that he has at least the makings of common sense after all. Writing from England, where he seems to have got his eyes a bit opened, he says:

"This modern English business man, though he looks more like an army officer than like a Chicago sales manager, though he lives in a secluded cottage with a tennis lawn instead of in a Park Avenue apartment, though he may not grind cigars in the corner of his mouth, is increasingly like the American business man in his every ideal and method. Personally, I am glad of it. I have a sneaking notion that closer alliances between British and American business men will do more to keep that peace without which our civilization will blow up than any pious aspirations of churches, pacifists, and radicals. I have been accused (even by the magnificent, the archducal International President of the organization) of saying nasty things about the Rotarians, but I assert that the growth of Rotary in Great Britain, where it already has hundreds of chapters, is more important for world tranquility than all the campaigns of the reformers put together."

of a
New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK—Great oaks from little acorns grow, is no axiom to be despised. The fortune Joe Leblang is putting into the skyscraper that will brace up the heavens at Forty-third and Broadway, is founded upon the sale of theater tickets at cut rates.

Leblang got rich selling admissions to shows, good and bad, to penny-careful tourists and natives at less than the box-office prices. Years ago he began glancing complimentary tickets at theatres from shop keepers and others to whom they were given in return for window or billboard space, and selling them cheap. His office was his vest pocket. Then he began buying blocks of tickets to less popular shows at wholesale prices and reselling them at a reduction from the regular charge. The business grew, and eventually he bought the drug store in which he used a small stand, then the building, then half of the business block. He backed shows financially (as he still does) just in order to enlarge the supply of tickets that could be sold at cut rates.

Some of the producers fought him at first, and even opened rival cut-rate agencies. Eventually they recognized him as a power-factor in the prosperity of Broadway, for through cut rates he sent into theaters many persons that would not otherwise have gone. And "cut-rating" at Leblang's has saved many a show for prosperity. It was Joe's agency that made "Abie's Irish Rose" the biggest hit the stage has ever had.

Now Joe Leblang's which occupies the basement of half a block, is world famous. Knowing well that sooner or later every show gets into Joe's at cut rates, many persons buy no tickets elsewhere.

The value of the land upon which the Leblang tower will cramp the clouds is $5,000,000. It has doubled in value in 20 years. Present tenants in street front shops pay as much as $25,000 a year rental for space no longer than a good-sized living room.

The red Indians got $24 for the whole island.

Most of New York's big fortunes have been made in real estate rather than in manufacture, finance or trade. The Astor wealth, for instance, comes almost exclusively from rentals. Benjamin Winter, penniless immigrant 20 years ago, is rated at $50,000,000 today, as a result of dealings in Fifth avenue land. The Chanin brothers came out of the World War without a penny. Real estate operations in New York have made them multi-millionaires in six or seven years. A. E. Leff, richest man in a city where he has known war, is towered buildings in the garment district were his gold mines.

In summer New Yorkers take either to the country or to the roofs. The most popular dining places in summer are atop hotels or skyscrapers. And many persons have given up a country house in order to take one of the pent-houses of which every new skyscraper now has one or more. One simply isn't in it in New York, unless one has a pent-house. Usually pent-house occupants have one or more additional residences hereabouts, the pent-house being used chiefly for what is called social purposes.

Honeydew Melon
Fried Chicken with Bacon
Potatoes au Gratin—Corn on Cob
Pepper Hash
Peach Bavarian Cream
Black Coffee

Whether you like summer weather or not, you must admit that it brings in its train many good things to eat, and at reasonable prices. Use the fresh fruits and vegetables freely in your daily menus. Serve part of them raw and you will find your health improved although the weather may be scorching.

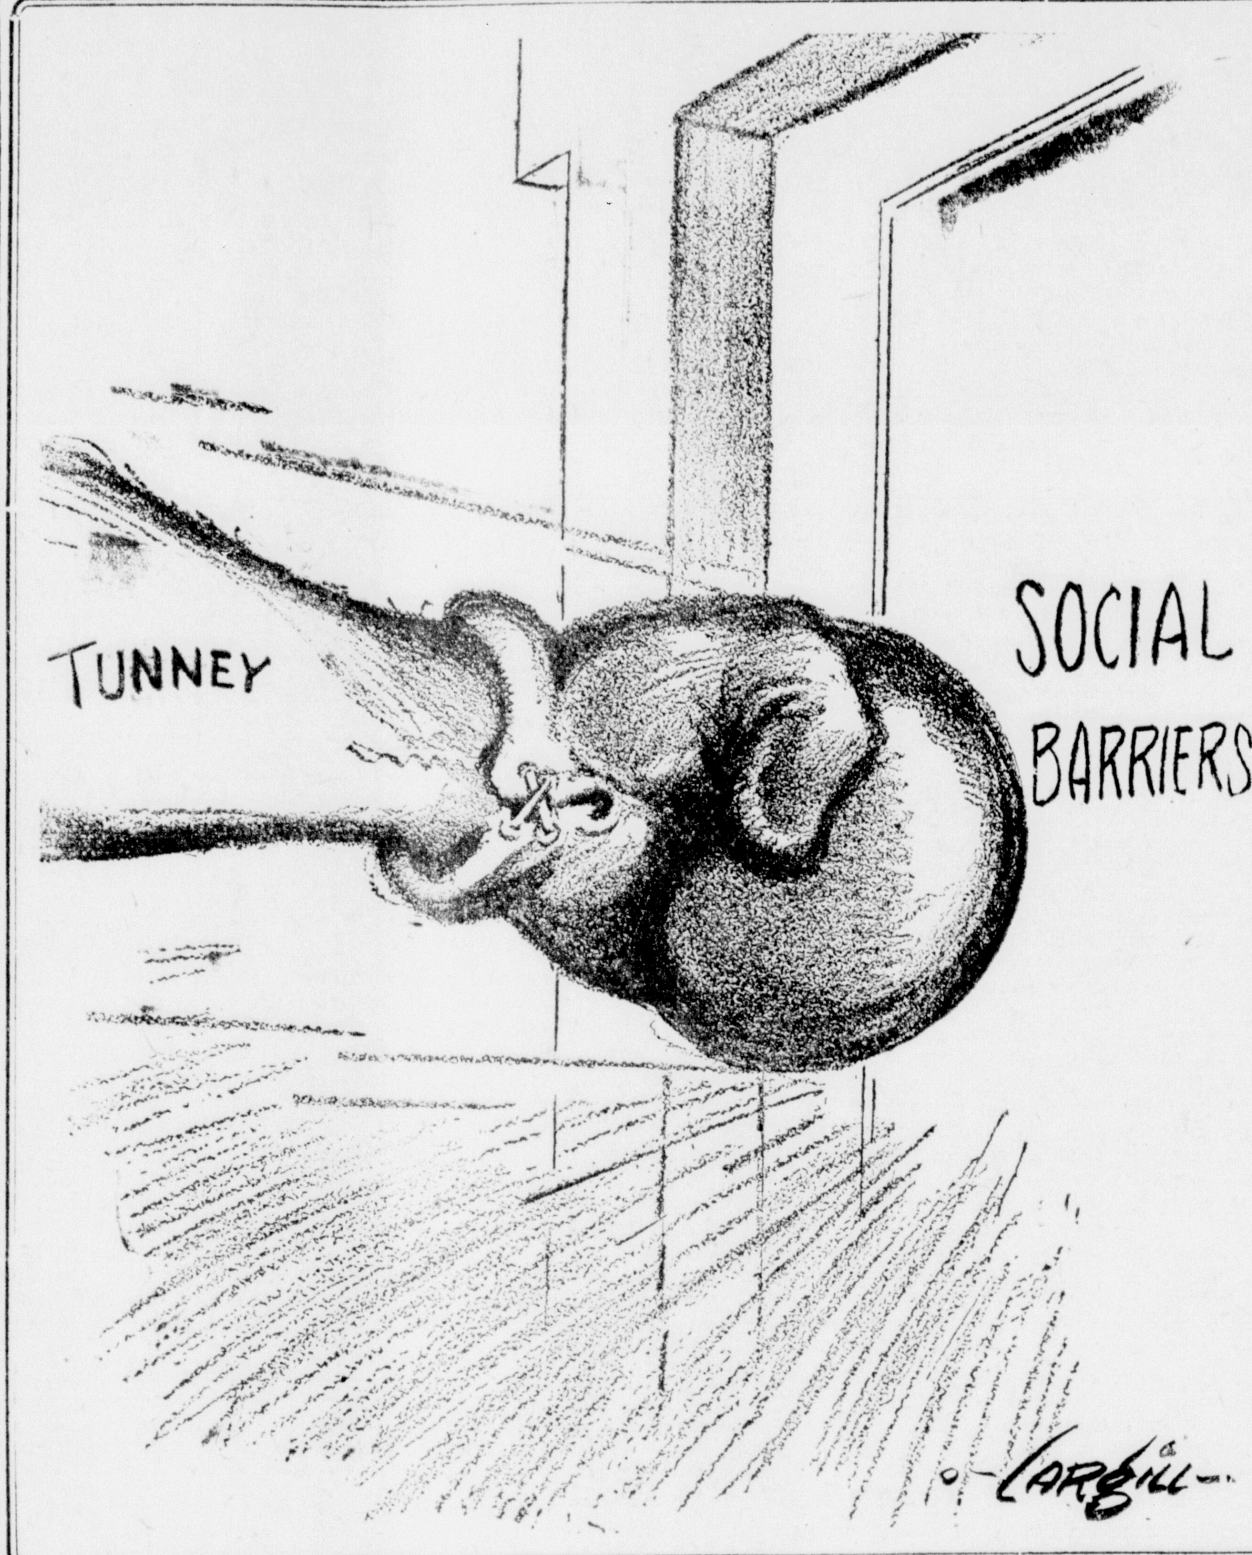

Today's Recipes

Fried Chicken with Bacon—Clean, singe and cut chicken in small joints. Wash and drain, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge well with flour. Heat fat for deep frying. Roll thin bacon slices to make curls and fry in the deep fat. Lay aside to keep warm drop the chicken pieces in the fat and fry until brown. Place on paper to drain.

Potatoes au Gratin—Cut potatoes in dice. Make a cream sauce of one tablespoon each of butter and flour, blended with a cup of milk. Heat until thick and smooth. Add one-half teaspoon of salt and a pinch of black pepper, add potato and place in a buttered baking dish. Cover with bread crumbs and grated cheese and bake. If cooked potatoes are used they will be sufficiently cooked in fifteen minutes, but if you use raw potatoes allow them fifty minutes.

Pepper Relish—Chop together one green pepper, one red pepper two cups of cabbage, three sweet pickles, one small onion, cover with a cup of sweet pickle juice or one cup vinegar, one-half cup of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of black pepper and one teaspoon of celery seed. Serve on beds of lettuce.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Good Taste in Dress—Important to Beauty

Today I am going far afield in talking to you about that subject ever dear to a woman's heart—clothes!

Clothes may not make the woman any more than a frame makes the picture, but certainly the beauty of a painting may be lost by a horrible ornate and totally unbecoming and incorrect frame. Exactly the same holds true with clothes. The right clothes can make an ordinary woman chic, charming and attractive, and the wrong ones can make a pretty woman a fright!

I wish that it were in my power to explain just what charm is. I wish I could define it so exactly that every woman might develop it. But, if that plan were at all feasible, some one would have preceded me by years, and there would be nothing to distinguish the French woman from her American cousin except the language she uses.

In explaining, or rather, in trying to explain the smartness of the Parisienne, I am going to attempt the impossible. I am going to try and explain to you the way the French women think—the way she buys her clothes, and the way she wears them.

First of all, she plans her wardrobe for suitability. She will not wear a fluffy, easily creased gown to her daily labors. If she has not the francs to buy two gowns, she chooses a dark, sensible, straight-lined frock, and counts upon chic accessories to "dress it up." She knows line and color as American women know their a-b-c's. And one of the most important signs of her cleverness is her utter disregard of fads.

The little Parisienne does not buy for one month or two. She buys for a season's good wear, and another season's second best wear! She cannot afford to be intrigued by the conspicuous fads. She cannot afford to buy a green or a yellow or a purple gown because the couturiers are selling the ultra modern green and yellow and purple. She cannot afford to buy the frilly touches that are in today and hopelessly passe tomorrow.

She buys for becomingness. That is why her style is unsurpassing, and her ensemble as chic as her less enlightened sisters pay triple the price for.

In buying clothes, you should buy for style, for comfort and for value. Slenzy material, badly put together with ugly machine stitched hems is not going to look well, no matter how new its make or how correct it is—according to the latest style journals.

Watch the sales. America is a land of good value, if only you know how to look for it. I have been told that the life of a style in the better stores is never over two or three months. That is why, at the end of each season you will find amazing reductions and if you are clever, you will avail yourself of them.

And remember that no "buy" is a good bargain if it does not enhance your beauty and suit your individuality as well as your needs.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

RUBBER REDUCING CORSETS

Some forms of rubber reducing corsets are very comfortable and do give a trim appearance to the figure. Extreme claims are made that there is a constant massage and an increase in the perspiration from them which will reduce the abdomen.

I don't believe there is an iota of truth in either of these assertions. You will get the same amount of massage from any corset that you will from the rubber corset. So far as perspiration you get with the rubber corsets is due to the fact that it doesn't evaporate, and so accumulates. This in many cases causes an extreme irritation of the skin.

I approve of a good fitting weight around the abdomen because it does seem to help the corset for those who have excess fat from expanding so much and it does give a sense of support.

Peach Bavarian Cream—Soak one level tablespoon of gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water for five minutes and dissolve by standing the cup containing the mixture in hot water. To one cup of crushed fresh peaches add one tablespoon of lemon juice, strain the gelatin into the fruit, add one-half cup of sugar. When the sugar is dissolved set in a pan of ice water and stir until the mixture begins to thicken; then fold in one and one-half cups of heavy cream beaten until stiff. Turn into a wet mold and chill.

that is comforting to weak walls. And you can always know that anyone who has a lot of fat around the abdomen has weak abdominal walls.

These really should be no need of corsets. The abdominal wall has sets of overlapping muscles that should be developed so they are as tough as whalebone and do all the supporting necessary.

When it is generally known that normal weight can be attained and maintained by the proper diet and exercises and when it is generally known that means overeating for the needs, women (and men) will be fat and corsets will be done away with, except for special conditions.

We have an article called the Atonic Abdominal Wall which will tell you how to develop it, from which we have had many grateful testimonies. A firmly developed abdominal wall means so much to general health that it would require another article to write about it. Those who are interested will find this data in the article we mentioned. The column rules for obtaining material we offer are to enclose two cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope for all articles except the reducing and gaining pamphlet, for which ten cents in coin in addition to the self-addressed, stamped envelope are necessary.

Raw Food Diet

The raw food diet, for a short time, is undoubtedly of value for

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

An old fellow who had been practically a miser all his life died recently in our neighborhood and the friend who preached his funeral sermon spoke in highest terms of the man's exemplary career. He had always been safe and sane and saving.

After the funeral was over, people spoke in low tones, of his no-account brother, a life-long rover and spendthrift. They shook their heads and deplored that one man should go through life problem by problem even saving enough for his own burial while his thrifty brother had such a lovely funeral.

But I couldn't help wondering if the no-account brother who had roamed over the world, with little thought of the morrow, hadn't had more fun and satisfaction in his life than the one who had concentrated his whole attention on saving money. I thought of the remark of the philosopher who observed that some live rich to die poor while others live poor to die rich.

Those who have been having a diet that is deficient in the mineral elements and vitamins. This is because most of the foods that can be eaten raw—nuts, fruits, vegetables, milk—are the foods that liberally supply the vitamins and mineral elements. Such a diet stimulates the intestinal tract so that constipation with its resulting evils are overcome. It's a good diet for one who is overweight, for it eliminates breads and pastries which they are so fond of.

It is not necessary to go on an exclusive raw food diet to get benefit from it, however. You could have breakfast, say, and supper of raw foods, and the mid-day meal of cooked foods, as usual. Very many are benefited by this regime.

Precautions have to be taken that the fruits and vegetables are very thoroughly washed, so as to be free from disease producing agencies. That precaution, of course, should be taken when you eat raw foods at any time.

We have an article on Balanced Diet which will benefit many. See directions above for obtaining it.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed stamped envelope and two cents in coin for each article to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, ten cents in coin with fully a. s. e. must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters in care of this paper.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

NEW YORK.—Fred Smith's campaign committee is getting rather belatedly into action.

They say Smith does not consider a late start a disadvantage. Maybe not—if his crowd snaps into it "pronto."

They are not doing it. The fact is, politically speaking, Smith's campaign committee is mediocre. Even that is a compliment. "Among us girls," I'd call it away below mediocrity.

I do not mean that Smith is a mediocrity, but he was not on the job today.

Neither, I suppose, is John J. Raskob mediocre. Certainly he is not, from a financial standpoint. But otherwise? Assuredly he is not an outstanding personality. He "received" the newspaper men this afternoon.

He is colorless. He is quite without "punch."

He is also without humor. He had just been talking with George N. Peek, the farm relief man. He told us that one of the Democrats' main stunts will be to "define their stand on farm relief in language that everybody can understand."

Lord love us!—doesn't he know that all our foremost economists are in sanitariums already?—from trying to define their stand on farm relief in language that ANYBODY, including the economists, themselves can understand.

The ridiculous part of it is to sit in an office in the General Motors building, in the heart of Manhattan, and discuss agriculture.

And if you raise the point that John J. does not know what he is talking about, his come-back is that his wife is cultivating flax on a farm in Maryland. Gosh! I know a man whose wife cultivates orchids on a farm in Pennsylvania—under glass, of course—but he does not profess to be able to solve the agricultural problem "in language that everybody can understand."

What John J. Raskob had in mind may have been simple enough to HIM, but I do know that the newspaper men who "pressed room" at Democratic headquarters and fought like wildcats over the question of what he was driving at.

Just what might have been expected in what is happening.

New York City is trying to Smith's campaign. For instance, take his publicist. It is in the hands of a New York City newspaper man—a good one—Joe Canavan—but his theory evidently is that if he "sells" Al to the metropolitan district—where he's "sold" already—he is as good as elected. It is the old story—there's little to the United States west of the Hudson river.

I heard, down in Washington, that Smith had a wonderful campaign organization.

I had a chance to come up and take a look at it, and I took advantage of it. Assured, in advance, that it really was a marvel, it took several days for the idea to soak into me that it was a prune, like most campaign committees. If anything it is worse than the Hoover committee in Washington. That I'm going some, but I do not believe I exaggerate.

Smith has, in reality, some good boosters for him, like Mrs. Henry Moscovitz—I have met her and can testify that I think she might well be able to put him over, if given the opportunity—but the so-called "experts" have been chloroformed.

There are odds to be had against Al, I am aware.

Before I had been up here, and taken a look at his committee, I might have been tempted to avail myself of a few of them. Now I do not know. He carries an awful handicap.

Better Let Man Woo Girl
If All's To Be Well Later

As a general thing I believe the old rule holds true that men should be the wooers. Even those who insist women are the real wooers admit that it must be done subtly to be successful. The girls that openly chase their prey only succeed in scaring it away. But when a "feller needs a friend," when trouble comes to him, a girl friend should forget that there is such a thing as male and female, and only remember that she has a chance to prove her friendship by acting as she would to a girl friend in like circumstances.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl in my teens, and I am with a crowd of boys and girls. There is one boy that I have always liked especially well, and he seemed to like me. Lately his family have gotten in a great deal of scandal and he has not been going with us since it started. He seems changed. He speaks to me but that is all. He is alone a great deal of the time. I feel sorry for him and I would like to know how to regain his friendship without seeming too forward. Blue Eyes."

Take your mother into your confidence, Blue Eyes, and with her consent, write him a little friendly note and invite him over for a certain evening. You might have another couple of your crowd over if you like, and show him every way that the trouble in his family hasn't changed him in your sight. I think if that was done a few times by different members of your crowd he would be helped through his trouble and made to feel that you are no fair weather friends.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a girl for about two years. We have been getting along very nicely until about two weeks ago. Her friend, who lives in another city, recently came to visit her. My girl really thinks I like this out-of-town girl, but I don't. Every time she writes to my girl she asks about me. I really love my sweetheart, but she threatens to break up with me if I don't quit writing about me. I am in a terrible predicament. Could you advise me what to do? A. S."

The next time you see your girl and she brings the matter up I would adopt an air of hurt anger. You may have to practice this a bit in private. I'd tell her that her want of faith hurts you more than you can say, and that as she does not trust you, if you can manage a fade away at this point it would be effective and leave the impression that you will love her to the death, but that if she wants you to call she had better write you a note of apology or phone and let you know and you will consider the matter. That will settle her, I miss my guess.

Peter's Adventure

Boastful Billy Boat-Bill

"Night Heron's cousin didn't seem a bit provoked at what wife said. I was afraid he might be. He said pleasantly:

"Can't you guess how I got my name? Then you haven't noticed my beak. Doesn't it remind you of two boats placed together, upside down? I have been told that the ridge on the top of my upper bill and the one on the lower bill look like heels. Although I belong to the Heron family most of my relatives have beaks that are long and sharp. But mine is different! That is why I thought so remarkable by my people. I am a remarkable bird—I admit it! You will think so, too, when you know me long enough!"

"Well, of all the conceited birds I have ever met you are the worst!" exclaimed wife before I could prevent her. "No matter how fine I thought myself, I would have sense enough not to go about telling other folks. You really are not a bit good-looking, only queer. I wouldn't like you for anything."

"Because you couldn't!" replied Billy Boat-Bill, not at all angry. "Go ahead. Say what you like! You can't hurt my feelings! I know I am a distinguished character in birdland and I had much rather be that than handsome. Plenty of birds are beautiful and nobody knows anything about them. They spend their lives in the depths of the forests while I pass my days traveling. When I tire of the sands of the shores, I move to the marshes and swamps, and there I live like a king. By the way, speaking of kings, I catch my food in almost the same way as does Kingfisher—you may have heard of that bird. I spy a fin cutting the water now. Watch me catch 'foolish fish.'"

"Sure enough, Billy Boat-Bill did go about his fishing much as a Kingfisher would have. A real jutting out over the water—upon this Boat-Bill hopped and stood there perfectly motionless!"

"The fish was halfway down his beak when we first saw him." For a moment. Then, kersplash! Down he pounced upon the lucky swimmer. About all we could see of the fish was its tail as it disappeared within his great bill. "There," cried he, "I don't believe even Cousin Stork could have made a neater catch than that!" "Cousin Stork?" "Wife looked at me and I looked at her. Was Billy Boat-Bill telling the truth? I made up my mind to ask the fellow, and he must be admitted he had proved himself friendly, a straightforward question."

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS HERE WITH MUSIC AND LECTURE WEDNESDAY

Chautauqua for Xenia and vicinity starts Wednesday afternoon at 8 p. m., when the Shumate Bros. quartet presents the opening program.

The Redpath organization has brought a new test this year and everything will be ready for the opening.

H. L. Hinton, professor, chemistry at Michigan State College, East Lansing, Mich., is the superintendent of this year's chautauqua. Miss Ruth Zimmerman, of Ohio University, is the junior supervisor. Robert Leever and Chester Crist, of Ohio State University, and Theodore Dickey, of Findlay College, are the men on the crew.

The ticket sale is progressing nicely and prospects are good for

LANG CHEVROLETS BEAT ROTARIANS

The Lang Chevrolet Co. softball team registered its seventh victory of the season by defeating the Rotary Club 23 to 12 in an American League game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Tuesday night.

Lang started on the mound for Kersey after the Rotarians had amassed an 8 to 3 lead in the first two innings. Langs tied the score in the third and then proceeded to win out while Kersey was holding the opposition safe the remainder of the distance.

The victory placed Langs in a virtual tie with the Hudson-Essex nine for second place.

Kimber pitched for the Rotarians.

THROUGH
for the day

"How I treasure my Vacuum Cleaner." A good early start on cleaning day and I'm through in no time. No back-breaking sweeping; not just shifting the dust from one place to another; but easy, thorough cleaning, leaving the rugs, carpets, drapes, upholstery—every nook and corner free from dust and dirt.

A Westinghouse Vacuum is so easy to operate and the cost an incalculable trifle.

The attendance of the three day Jamestown Chautauqua was not as good as was anticipated, although the programs were entertaining and instructive. Miss Lillis Lewis of Texas, entertained the children in a delightful manner each day. No guarantee was made to the Radcliffe Bureau, for a return in 1929. On Sunday evening a union meeting of all the churches was held in the tent and Probate Judge Wright of Wilmington, gave a splendid address. His subject was: "The Three M's in the Highway of Life—the Material, the Moral and the Master's," thus making a spiritual application. The large tent was filled to hear him.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Barker had for their week end guests, Mr. and Mrs. William Barker and children, Lila, Donald and Max of Salem, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Beverlin Barker, of Columbus.

Mrs. A. G. Carpenter has returned home from a two weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Penfield, in Dayton.

On Saturday evening the Chautauqua talent who were on the platform that day, gave a party at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Parker honoring Miss Lillis Lewis. Those participating were Mr. and Mrs. George Kempton, Dr. John E. Aubrey, Mr. William Yost, Miss Peggy Williams, Mr. J. P. Rodgers. Delicious refreshments were served and the time was spent in an informal manner.

Janet Mary James, eighteen, has an ambition to go on the stage because her mother, who died the night she was born, had been a famous opera star. In New York Janet meets Ballard Riley, young successful physician, who is known as a woman hater. Ballard dates her up, and at first Janet gets a lot of fun teasing Ballard about his ideas. Later she knows she loves him and she is not so sure of him. Ballard keeps her guessing. Janet is given a small dancing part in Mort Goldstein's latest musical revue. Mort thinks she will make a star. In New York Janet meets Flavia Marlowe, rich and fashionable, who is just beginning to show her age and trying to hide it. Janet detests "Putty" Bigelow, boy friend of Flavia's, but he is determined to cause trouble between Janet and Flavia by acting as though he is in love with Janet. Sir Henry Martindale, one of the Villagers, has taken a fatherly interest in Janet. He has interested Mort Goldstein in her acting. Janet has gone to a New Year's eve party, given by Flavia, and "Putty" Bigelow has shown her much attention.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV
Janet gave Sir Henry a pleading look, and said under her breath: "That beast scares me to death. I'm so afraid he'll hurt Flavia's feelings again. And she is so sick." "I'll stick close by you," Sir Henry put his arm about her, and bent as though they were in close, important conversation.

Putty laughed heartily and called attention to the fact that Sir Henry, the old sheik, had monopolized the prettiest girl in the crowd! Fortunately, Flavia was in another room when he swung across and sat down beside them.

"Hello, sweetheart! Trying to get away from me?" He bent and whispered in her ear. "I came here because I thought you would be at Flavia's party. She called me today and invited."

So Putty hadn't surprised Flavia. That was why the glad look in her eyes when Lotus Flower said there was someone at the door. Janet clinched her teeth and pushed Putty away from her.

"Please be decent tonight if it kills you, Mr. Bigelow." Putty seemed amused.

"You don't like me any better, angel, I see." Then he half sneered, and glared at Sir Henry. "Maybe I'm too young for you."

She could have bitten her tongue off after she said it. It was a reflection on Flavia, but she had not intended it that way. It had just slipped.

Sir Henry was angry enough to smash Putty, but he did not dare create a scene. At any cost, they must save Flavia the humiliation of such a thing. Putty moved closer to Janet and folded his arms.

"Try to get rid of me, darling! I'm going to spend the last minutes of the old year by your side if someone kills me for it."

Janet knew he was in earnest. She looked up and saw Flavia near the door and darted out from the divan. He would not dare follow her into Flavia's boudoir. Sir Henry turned to Putty and hissed with anger.

"You damned rotter, leave that girl alone or get out of here!" Putty laughed and got up: "Like hell I will, old fellow. She is mine as much as yours."

When Putty went into the hallway Sir Henry was petrified. He knew that Flavia had her eye on them. She had seen Janet leave and now Putty. Somehow, he must distract Flavia's attention.

"Feel like dancing a bit, Flavia?" She pulled away nervously, and looked toward the door.

"In a minute." Sir Henry could feel her trembling, as Putty stepped into Flavia's room after her. Her face went white as he slowly crossed and stood in front of her, threateningly.

"I'm going to be the first man to kiss you next year. In about half minute the whistles are going to blow—and I will kiss you."

Janet put her hand over her mouth to stifle a scream. She reached out and put a hand on his arm, pleadingly.

"Putty—please, Putty, for Flavia's sake get out of here. Don't follow me. You know what happened before. She is so sick—"

He grabbed her arm in a vise-like hold that hurt her.

"I'm just waiting for the whistles to blow—"

Janet was blind with anger. She could have killed him—but there was no use in trying to pull away.

She was awakened by the ringing of the telephone. It was Sir Henry—his voice unnatural and strained.

Flavia had fallen to the floor unconscious as the door closed on Janet, and had never awakened. She had died four hours later.

Janet sank to the floor in a half faint.

He had killed her—Putty Bigelow had killed her. Oh, God, how cruel! She could not cry—move. Sir Henry came in and found her that way an hour later. She was too ill to play in the show that night.

It was the biggest thing she had ever done.

The Theater

By HARRISON CARROLL

International News Service Special Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 15.—Louis Wolheim's ideas on the tender passion are as vigorously unsentimental as might be expected, if the man whom the stage knew as the inarticulate stoker of "The Hairy Ape," the torrentially profane Capt. Flagg of "What Price Glory," and the screen has known as the brutal, egotistical Scarci of "The Racket."

Wolheim, as I see him in life, is a personality composite of all these fictional prototypes.

He has, in addition to these qualities, a direct, incisive intelligence—incisive that is, except on a few subjects where he has a tendency to be opinionated.

But he's a little touchy about love scenes.

I made this discovery from the vantage point of a comfortable chair—a beamed English ceiling above me—well-filled book shelves to my back and Wolheim before me weighing down a divan—Wolheim with shirt open at neck and two blunt fingers choking a cigarette.

"Have you ever played in a love scene?" I asked innocently.

"What do you mean—don't you think I could?"

We waited for more—I say "We" for those present included Lewis Milestone, Hollywood incoast and William Cameron Menzies, a young Scotch art director of United Artists.

"Sure, I played in a love scene," exclaimed Wolheim suddenly. "On the stage in 'The Fair Circassian.' I played the prince regent, afterwards George IV. I was supposed to use a lot of technique making love to a woman—the play lasted a week."

"I come pretty close to a love scene in the new Vilma Banky picture," he continued after the laugh subsided. "You can see I adore her. This business of a clinch at the end of a picture is all wrong dramatically. The dramatic part is the man wanting the woman—not getting her. That's anti-climax."

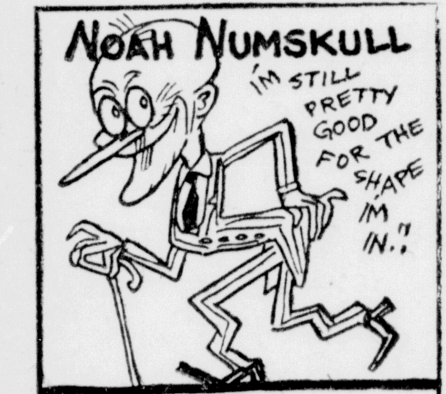

"You never see any of the mushy love scenes on the stage," he began again. "They're poison—they're laughs. These things are not meant to be done in public. When they are, they're funny. Look at the love letters published in the newspapers. Everybody laughs. You see, the readers are not in the mood of the person who wrote them or of the person the letters were written to. It is the

KONJOLA BRINGS HAPPINESS INTO AFFLICTED HOME

Mother and Son Tell of Miraculous Results Achieved by Just a Few Bottles of Marvelous Konjola

A home of misery transformed by Konjola into a home of health and happiness! That is the history of Mrs. Nancy Wisecup, and her son Mr. William Wisecup, 228 Dayton Avenue, Xenia, as told to the Konjola Man, explaining daily the astounding achievements of this new medicine at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., Xenia. Every day the Konjola Man is hearing most gratifying reports of the wonders wrought by this new medicine in cases—many of them of long standing—of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel afflictions, and in cases of neuritis, rheumatism and extreme nervousness.

"Konjola has made me well and happy," exclaimed Mrs. Wisecup. "I had a tubercular cough and became so worn down that I was compelled to go to bed. My appetite had vanished; what I did force myself to eat caused intense pains, belching and bile from indigestion, and heart palpitation and swelling of my hands."

"Nothing helped me; I had about given up hope of relief when Konjola was suggested by a friend who had taken this wonderful new medicine. I never expected to be well again, but three bottles of Konjola rectified all that ailed me. My cough has disappeared—no more spitting of blood, and my stomach is in splendid condition. Do you wonder that I marvel at Konjola?"

Her son, William Wisecup, encouraged by the work of this new remedy in Mrs. Wisecup's case, took Konjola to relieve constipation, stomach and kidney ailments. He says:

"Many a day I could not go to work, and when I did go was able to do scant justice to the job. Rheumatism, indigestion and kidney trouble made life a misery and a burden. My mother insisted that I try Konjola; pointed out what it had done for her. To my amazement all pain is gone; can eat anything. And I took just two bottles. How I wish that every man who suffers as my mother and I did could know about Konjola."

Konjola is near you; relief is at hand. Here is a life-line thrown out to you; grasp it. Don't put off trying Konjola; every day you delay means just another day of suffering.

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

PUPILS OF SLAIN TEACHER RECALL CAMPUS POPULARITY

Miss Jennie Constance

By IONE QUINCY

Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 15.—A woman at whose hearthstone hundreds of careers were formulated and innumerable problems solved! A teacher who understood!

That is the eulogy of innumerable graduates of the Bradley Polytechnic Institute of Peoria and of young men and women friends of the unfortunate English teacher, Miss Jennie Constance, who was found brutally murdered in Evanston not far from the Northwestern university grounds, where she was taking a post-graduate course, preparatory to further study at Oxford next winter.

Loved by Many
"She was the confidante of students from the newest farm raised freshman to the self-sophisticated senior," Albert C. Fuller, an officer of the National Hotel Greeters of America, and a long-time friend of the slain school teacher, said. "She never was too busy to give advice and sympathy to the timid students who came to Bradley from the rural communities. As head of the English department of the institute Miss Constance had under her direction the listing of all new students for the theme conferences. In this way she personally came in contact with every student on the campus, and the rollment was usually around 1,200 from all over the country.

Held Open House

"Her rooms always were open to all students. They came and went without the formality of ringing the doorbell, and she never was too busy to discuss problems with them. In no few cases the entire career of the student was formulated in these intimate chats with Miss Constance."

"Soon after her arrival at Bradley, in 1919, her reputation grew to be a tradition, and incoming students were sent to her by friends," Fuller recalls. "She was faculty advisor for several student clubs. She was an enthusiastic supporter of Bradley athletic teams and on occasions made trips with the teams, chaperoning groups of feminine rooters."

BEGG LEADS COOPER FOR GOVERNOR

COUNTY INCUMBENTS RE-NOMINATED OPponents FAIL IN CONTESTS; BALLOTS HERE FAVOR COOPER

FACTION FIGHT CLOSE

Judge Wright, Prosecutor Marshall And Surveyor Davis Re-Nominated; North Apparently Third In Commission Race.

Greene County voters favored Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, Republican, and Congressman Martin L. Davey, Kent, Democrat, for the gubernatorial nomination of their respective parties and helped nominate candidates for county, district and judicial offices at Tuesday's primary election.

With unofficial returns compiled from forty-four out of forty-eight precincts, Cooper was leading Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, his nearest opponent, by a vote of 2,743 to 1,280. Attorney General Edward C. Turner was a poor third with 490.

Davey was running a neck and neck race with Beatty for the Democratic nomination for governor. With eighteen out of forty-eight precincts reporting, Davey held a slim lead of three votes, 106 to 103.

Returns from all but four of the county's precincts indicate that all county officials opposed for re-nomination had won decisive victories over opponents.

S. C. Wright, seeking re-election for a second term as Judge of Probate Court, was re-nominated over Mayor John W. Prugh, Xenia, with an apparent plurality of nearly 900 votes.

J. Carl Marshall, seeking his third term as prosecuting attorney, was leading his opponent, William H. Howard, Xenia attorney, by 300 votes for the nomination.

By a majority of about 700 votes, William J. Davis was re-nominated for county surveyor over Harry Sparks, former Xenia city engineer.

John A. North, former county commissioner and running for his second term, had apparently lost the nomination in a close race with A. E. Beam and J. Harve Lackey, incumbents, running for their second terms. Beam was leading Lackey by 150 votes and North trailed Lackey by 180.

Carrington T. Marshall, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, was given a majority approaching 900 votes over former Senator Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland, his closest opponent, for the Republican short term senatorial nomination.

Senator Cyrus Locher, appointed by Governor Donahay to succeed the late Frank B. Willis in the United States senate, was running sixteen votes ahead of Graham P. Hunt, Cincinnati attorney, in their contest for the Democratic short term senatorial nomination.

For the Democratic nomination for the long term senatorial office, Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture, led former Congressman George White, Marietta, by almost a 3 to 1 majority.

For the Republican nomination for attorney-general, Clinton D. Boyd, Middletown, received better than a 2 to 1 majority over Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, his closest rival.

State Representative John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg, led the parade of candidates for the long term Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. His advantage over George C. Braden, Warren, stood at approximately 1,000 votes.

For the Democratic nomination for the long term of lieutenant governor, Lieutenant Governor W. G. Pickrel, appointed to the office by Governor Donahay, had a substantial lead over George S. Myers, of Cleveland.

Edwin Reed, Delaware, had a lead of 350 votes over George C. Braden, Warren, for the short term Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. There was no Democratic candidate for this nomination.

For the Democratic nomination for secretary of state John Henry Newman, Columbus, was leading Carl W. Smith, in a close race. Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, Republican, was unopposed for re-nomination.

Beri B. Buckley, incumbent, also had no opposition for the Republican nomination for state treasurer. On the Democratic side, Fred M. Bushnell, Mansfield, was favored over James Patrick Mangin, Cleveland.

State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy was making a run-away race out of his contest with Stanley Cherrington, Columbus, leading his opponent by a 5 to 1 ratio.

Daniel E. Butler, Toledo, held a slight lead over six other candidates for the Democratic nomination for state auditor.

For Supreme Court Judge, Geiger and Day won the Republican nominations, and Dunlavy and Monnett the Democratic nominations, there being no contests.

As far as other local races are concerned, the following Republican candidates were unopposed for re-nomination: R. D. Williamson, for state representative; Harvey Elam, for clerk of courts; Homer Tate for sheriff; Miss Helen Dadds for county treasurer; Dr. F. M. Chambliss for coroner. Dr. W. F. Ungard had no opposition for re-nomination.

AN EVENLY DIVIDED COMMITTEE MAY BE OUTCOME OF VOTING

Party Control May Hinge On Status Of Independent.

Unofficial returns from Tuesday's primary voting indicate that control of the Greene County Republican Central Committee may be evenly divided between the two dominating political factions, the Marshall-Gowdy faction and the anti-Marshall group.

The Marshall-Gowdy faction, one time dominant in party councils here, is believed to have won at least twelve, or half of the twenty-four places on the committee, while the anti-Marshall group is conceded eleven places. The party affiliation of the one remaining successful central committee candidate is said to be doubtful.

The official count of precincts, may, however, change the result in several close committee races.

Leaders of the Marshall-Gowdy group claim victory in thirteen places, which would shift party control by two votes. The anti-Marshall faction, which has held factional control for the last two years, refuses, however, to concede defeat, awaiting the official count and a determining of the factional status of Harry Hagler, New Jasper Twp., who is said to be independent.

The anti-Marshall group candidates were unopposed in five places and three Marshall faction candidates were without opposition, leaving sixteen places contested. Of these the Marshall-Gowdy group won at least nine and the anti-Marshall group at least six.

Following are believed to be the winning central committee candidates according to their factional affiliations:

Anti-Marshall Group
Beaver Creek Twp., Joseph Coy; Caesar Creek Twp., H. M. Smith; Cedarville Twp., A. H. Creswell; Miami Twp., Ed. Meredith; Silver Creek Twp., John C. Ross; Bellbrook, W. W. Tate; Bowersville, H. C. Fisher; Cedarville village, H. C. Lewis; Yellow Springs, J. N. Wolford; Xenia city first ward, George McDonnell; Xenia city third ward, William A. Fisher.

Marshall Group
Bath Twp., H. R. Armstrong; Jefferson Twp., A. L. Lewis; Ross Twp., Frank C. Lackey; Spring Valley Twp., A. C. Mendenhall; Sugar Creek Twp., Walton Spahr; Xenia Twp., J. B. Conklin; Fairfield, C. F. Snediker; Jamestown, Charles Moorhead; Osborn, F. A. Kendig; Spring Valley village, W. E. Critter; Xenia city second ward, S. W. Guyton; Xenia city fourth ward, Philip Thomas.

Independent
New Jasper Twp., Harry Hagler.

HOOVER DRY STAND REVEALED BY STATEMENTS YEARS AGO

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 15.—The American people can expect a bone-dry enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act to provide stricter enforcement of prohibition if Herbert Hoover is elected president, it was learned today on the highest authority.

All doubt over the Republican nominee's dryness was dispelled through the discovery of two Hoover utterances on prohibition, made back in 1918 under wartime law. A "tempest in a teapot" controversy had raged here since Saturday due to a "wet" interpretation, placed on Hoover's prohibition declaration, by one of his closest political advisers. His dryness, however, had been announced by International News Service on July 25.

The 1918 utterances revealed Hoover as a strict prohibitionist, as a man who sought to establish temperance in America and as one who deplored the drinking of intoxicating liquors. He announced himself flatly as a "lifelong believer in national temperance."

The utterances, a public statement and a letter to Senator Morris Sheppard (D) of Texas, placed Hoover in the category of the "bone-drys."

If any further doubt might exist as to his dryness, it would disappear through the action of Daniel A. Polling, editor of the Christian Herald and president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, in endorsing his acceptance speech declaration on prohibition. Polling, one of the outstanding dry leaders wired Hoover:

"It was economically sound, morally right and a challenge to the highest patriotism. The campaign has all the proportions of a crusade. We shall follow you with enthusiasm."

The letter to Senator Sheppard was written July 4, 1918, in reply to a request from the Texan that Hoover, as food administrator, close breweries throughout the country.

"If brewing is stopped," Hoover replied, "beer would disappear from the liquor trade within one or two months and the whole country would be put practically on a whiskey, brandy and gin basis, with some supplies of wine. The saloons would be left open and upon basis of selling drinks carrying 40 to 50 per cent of alcohol, with some supplies of wine, instead of a large proportion of their customers being served with a drink 2-3 per cent alcoholic content, and therefore, from a temperance viewpoint, much less harmful."

"It raises the very serious moral problem as to whether infinitely more damage will not result from such action than in a continuation of the use of this limited amount of foodstuffs in brewing. It does appear to me that the losses in food are entirely secondary to the moral and physical dangers."

"You are probably aware that I have been a lifelong believer in national temperance."

PAINTER DIES FROM HURTS IN FALL TUESDAY

Harold Humphrey, 38, Painter, Receives Fatal Injuries.

Harold Humphrey, 38, 8 Miami Ave., died at McClellan Hospital Wednesday morning at 10:30 from injuries received when he fell from a ladder while painting a barn on a farm owned by Frank A. Byers, 421 Bellbrook Ave., near Wilberforce, early Tuesday afternoon.

He was brought to McClellan Hospital, Xenia, where an examination disclosed a skull fracture. He was rendered unconscious in the fall, and did not regain consciousness before his death.

The ladder on which Humphrey was standing slipped from its position and knocked over two other ladders on which two fellow painters were standing.

Taylor Humphrey, 41, New Jasper Twp., a brother, suffered an injury to the right foot, and Mervie Baughn, 29, also of New Jasper, was bruised and shaken. Neither, however, required hospital attention.

The trio had finished painting the residence on the farm and had begun on the barn when the accident occurred.

O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, investigated the accident. Dr. F. M. Chambliss was summoned and brought the injured man to the Xenia hospital.

Humphrey is survived by his widow and five children.

LATE RETURNS PLACE SANDUSKIAN AHEAD; DAVEY IS NOMINATED

Republican Gubernatorial Race Is Close; Brown, Burton, Tracy, Bettman, Truax, Hunt Among Primary Victors

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15.—Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, apparent Republican nominee for governor of Ohio, was leading Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, by 13,284 votes in a tabulation of unofficial returns from yesterday's primary election, announced by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown at 8 o'clock this morning.

Congressman Martin L. Davey, Kent, appeared to have won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination easily. Unofficial figures at the secretary of state's office at 8 a. m. gave Davey a lead of 34,168 over Commerce Director Earl D. Bloom.

Unofficial returns received at the secretary of state's office from 6,994 of the 8,735 precincts in Ohio gave:

Begg, 138,021; Cooper, 135,737.

Although these figures give Begg a lead of 13,384 over Cooper, state election officials estimated that the final unofficial tabulation probably will give Begg a lead of about 12,000 in view of the fact that some of the missing precincts are in territory where Cooper is ahead. The late returns were expected to reduce Begg's lead somewhat.

Returns from 9,180 precincts November, will choose the officials who will take office next year.

Davey, 63,643; Bloom, 29,475.

Peter Witt, Cleveland, was running about 9,000 votes behind Bloom in the Democratic gubernatorial race.

Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, with a lead of 7,695 over John W. Bricker, Columbus, seemed to have captured the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Unofficial figures from 6,994 precincts gave: Bettman, 94,979; Bricker, 86,384.

On the basis of available returns at the secretary of state's office, the following Republican and Democratic state tickets were chosen at yesterday's primary election from which Ohio voters, at the regular general election next

For auditor of state: Joseph T. Tracy, Portsmouth, re-nominated.

PRECINCT PRIMARY OFFICIALS CAUGHT IN ALLEGED FRAUDS

Five Accused Of Barring Challengers From Booths

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—Five precinct election judges were under arrest here today and warrants were to be issued for a number of others, following one of the most turbulent election days in Cleveland history.

The warrants were sworn to by members of the honest elections committee of the Cleveland Bar Association, charging that qualified challengers, sent out by the committee, were barred from voting booths by precinct judges in various parts of the city.

Those arrested were: W. J. Prohn, John Schram, Milton Watkins, Louis Vincour, and Walter Brown. Harley Doncaster, chairman of the committee said many additional warrants would be issued today.

The warrants were issued by a justice and served by a constable. Sharp arguments occurred at a number of precincts, the judges refusing to go with the constable until the polls closed.

Policemen stationed at the booths supported the judges in these struggles in several instances.

MRS. JACK KEARNS IS SERIOUSLY ILL

LONG BEACH, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Believed to have been poisoned by something she had eaten, Mrs. Legana Kearns, wife of Jack Kearns, was said to be in a critical condition at Long Beach Hospital today.

Jack Dempsey endeavored to see Mrs. Kearns but physicians attending her informed him that no one would be admitted to the sick room. Dempsey then ordered one of his representatives to go to the hospital to see that everything possible be done to make her comfortable.

The former heavyweight champion knew Mrs. Kearns when both were in vaudeville and has remained on friendly terms with her despite his break with her husband.

THREE BOYS HURT

Three boys from Dayton, occupants of a Nohl Bottling Works truck, Dayton, received painful cuts and bruises when the truck overturned in a ditch near Jamestown, Tuesday night.

Names of the three boys could not be learned. Dr. A. D. Rittenour, Jamestown, dressed their injuries.

JEWEL SALESMEN KIDNAPED, ROBBED

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—A long distance kidnaping and robbery episode, which netted the perpetrators $100,000 in unset gems, terminated in Wheaton, Ill., West Chicago suburb, early today.

The two victims, Morris Keen, a New York jewelry salesman, and Elmer Kibett, taxicab driver, were found at dawn on the outskirts of Wheaton by Joseph Meyer, a farmer. The men were in an automobile, bound hand and foot, handcuffed and blindfolded.

TWO FLYERS KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES; THREE ARE SAVED

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 13.—Aviation added another tragedy to its toll today with the death of two men who were killed when their air-plane crashed from a height of 500 feet and plunged into the Ohio River near Tiltonville. Three other men in the craft narrowly escaped death.

August P. Hauke, 36, pilot of the plane which was flying from the Yorkville, O. airport and George Griffith, 35, of Bridgeport, O., were killed when they were trapped in the plane's cabin as it careened and dived into the river. Joseph Duncan, 47, of Martins

DEBATERS FAIL TO AGREE ON PLACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The proposed debate on morality between Governor Alfred E. Smith and Rev. John Straton probably will not be held, it appeared today, because the two principal speakers are unable to agree upon a meeting place. Answering the ultimatum of the Democratic presidential nominee that the debate be held in Dr. Straton's Calvary Baptist Church here or not at all, Dr. Straton reiterated today at his summer home at Greenwood Lake that this was impossible but declared that he would present his side of the case in some large hall whether or not the governor appeared to defend himself.

The Rev. Straton informed reporters that Governor Smith's reply was "just childish."

"I am not going to allow Governor Smith to run away from a fight," he said. "I will hire the largest hall I can get and go ahead with the debate anyhow."

BIGGEST ZEPPELIN ON TRIAL FLIGHT

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 15.—The world's newest and biggest Zeppelin, the "Count Zeppelin," will make its first trial flight on or about Monday, Sept. 3, it was learned today.

If the trial flights are successful and weather conditions are favorable the glimmers of the skies may leave Friedrichshafen for unforeseen difficulties. Dr. Hugo Eckener of the Zeppelin works and builder of the dirigible, has been ill and is going to Switzerland for a two weeks' holiday.

GREETINGS and REGRETS

The Xenia Retail Merchants Association today regrets the retirement of a leading Xenia merchant and extends a welcome to his successors.

Charles L. Jobe, for many years a stalwart in the commercial life of Xenia, has chosen to drop from active business life.

For forty years the name of Jobe Bros., has been a symbol of integrity in business dealings and a guarantee of quality merchandise. Now the final gesture of his business career is a guarantee that the name of Jobe Bros., will not only be perpetuated, but that it will continue to symbolize the ideals upon which it was founded forty years ago.

C. L. Jobe's contribution to Xenia's business life has been an example of integrity, of honesty and of dignity in merchandising.

Now it is given to him on retiring, the satisfaction of knowing that things for which he stood will be perpetuated. He has wisely chosen his successors so that the name of Jobe Bros., shall not fall upon evil days but will still be flaunted proudly among the leaders of Xenia's commercial interests. Perhaps the finest compliment paid Mr. Jobe is the tribute of a leading competitor, that he has always been fair in his business dealings, friendly and ever willing to cooperate. Thus is true sportsmanship carried into the world of business.

Xenia merchants welcome the new owners of the Jobe Bros., store proud of the tribute that has been paid Xenia by the choice of these men in coming here.

Because these three men of wide merchandising experience have chosen to invest their time and money here they have indirectly paid a great compliment to Xenia. When these men find in Xenia the spirit that indicates a future that will advance their interests, there is no cause for Xenians to be alarmed.

The confidence shown by the new owners in the future of Xenia, endorsing as it does the confidence that has already been shown by other Xenia merchants, should help strengthen the faith of Xenians in their city.

The merchants association likes to think of Xenia merchants as presenting a strong and united front in defense of Xenia against its common enemies—lack of civic spirit and the tendency to shop elsewhere. In this regard it is good to know that in the place vacated by one leader, retiring from business there will stand others who by their very investment here, indicate a confidence in Xenia that guarantees that this united front will not be broken.

And so the merchants' association today wants to congratulate C. L. Jobe on the satisfaction that must be his in retiring gracefully with the knowledge that his name and his ideals will carry on.

This association hopes that he will enjoy the rest from business cares that forty years of the vicissitudes of a merchandising career have earned for him, but that he will not deny Xenia the benefit of his mature judgment in the counsels of her merchants.

To James A. King, Chicago; H. Renick Boggs, Washington C. H., and Earl E. Mann, Bloomington, Ill., this association extends congratulations on the wisdom of their choice in acquiring such a valuable merchandising property in a city wide-awake to the advantages of the small town. It welcomes the firm in the conviction that here can and will be built a bigger, better city and it invites them cordially to assist in the task.

Entertains Two Parties At Luncheon-Bridge

Mrs. Lawrence D. Wilson was again a gracious hostess Tuesday and Wednesday when she entertained with luncheon and bridge. Guests for six tables were received Tuesday and for three tables, Wednesday.

A tempting luncheon preceded cards both days. The Wilson home was made unusually attractive with bouquets of summer bloom, pink and green being the predominating color combination.

Mrs. Wilson's out-of-town guests Tuesday were Mrs. Plummer Mifflin, Lansing, Mich.; Miss Betty Swalm, New York City; Mrs. Pliny Powers and Mrs. Frank Haines, Cleveland, Mrs. Paul Long, St. Louis, Miss Jane Nide, New York City and Mrs. Robert Collins, Dayton. The Wednesday guests were all local friends of their hostess.

Miss Jane Nide was awarded high score prize Tuesday and Mrs. Frederick Anderson carried off second honors while Mrs. R. A. Higgins received low score.

The single ring ceremony was used. The couple was attended by the bride's sister and brother, Miss Lucile and Mr. Harry Mossman. After the ceremony a three-course dinner was served at the bride's home. Covers were laid for eight: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mossman, Miss Lucile and Mr. Harry Mossman, the bridegroom's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dabe, Dayton and Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Boring.

The Misses Edith and Grace Wigal and Nellie Mossman, cousins of the bride, assisted the hostess in serving the dinner. The color scheme of pink and white was used in the menu and decorations, the centerpiece being formed by a bride and bridegroom, standing on a pink and white pedestal.

The young couple will soon go to housekeeping in Dayton. O. Mrs. Boring graduated from Ross Twp. High School in the class of 1924 and has been living at home. She wore a navy blue georgette dress with hat and slippers to correspond.

Mr. Boring was a member of the graduating class of 1921 of Mount Pleasant High School, Clinton County. He attended Wilmington College two years and taught school five years in Silvercreek Twp. He is now employed in a Kroger grocery at Dayton.

Mr. Charles Poland has accepted the position as right-away man for the Dayton Power and Light Co. His transfer to Xenia was effective last week.

Mrs. Mary LeVan of the Johnson Beauty Shop, has taken a leave of absence and is vacationing at her former home in Texas.

The McClelland Y. P. B. will meet at the home of the Misses Phoebe and Marguerite Burrell at 8:30 o'clock Friday night, August 17.

The Misses Velda Beal and Lilian Gilbert have returned from the Pi Delta Theta Sorority camp at Lake St. Marys, Celina, O.

Dr. J. A. Yoder and family returned home Tuesday afternoon after two weeks' vacation with relatives in Pennsylvania.

Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Myler and two daughters of the O. S. and S. O. Home, returned Wednesday, after spending two days at Atlantic City.

Mrs. E. F. Canby, N. King St., is visiting relatives in Marietta, O.

The Harness family reunion will be held at the Za Za School, three miles west of Xenia, Sunday, August 26. Members are urged to attend and bring well-filled baskets.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Winters of Coffeyville, Kan., who have been spending the past week at the home of Mrs. Belle Anderson and Miss Jennie St. John, St. Detroit St., started for their home Monday morning. Enroute home they will stop at the lakes for a few days.

Mrs. Russell E. Halstead and daughter, Edabelle have returned home after spending several days at Cold Springs, on Hamilton Lake, Hamilton, Ind. They accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Harley Hickman and son, Vernon, of Springfield and were joined at Cold Springs by Mr. and Mrs. Darrell C. Smith of Brimfield, Ind.

Yellow Springs

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Libby of Tarpon Springs, Florida, are formally announcing the approaching marriage of their daughter, Margaret, to Mr. Russell Black.

Miss Charlie Santmyer, Dayton, is spending her vacation with Mrs. Frederick Anderson and other relatives here.

Mr. E. F. Canby has returned from Cedar Point, O., where he attended the National Photographers' Association convention.

Raymond Ellsberry, 18, employed in the construction of the bridge on the Fairfield Pike, is under the care of a physician after a rusty nail entered his left foot, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Phillips, Dayton, who have been visiting Mr. Phillips' parents, in Harrison, Tenn., have gone to San Antonio, Tex., for a visit with Mr. Phillips' brother, Mr. Randall Phillips.

The sixteenth annual Green family reunion will be held Sunday, August 19, at Snyder Park, Springfield.

Mrs. Laura B. Mason, Bexley, O., is visiting Miss Lena Hessel, 109 E. Second St.

WINS PRIZE TRIP

Fourth prize, providing for two round trip tickets to Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto, by way of the Great Lakes with all expenses paid, was won by Otis Hornick, Xenia agent for Otis Columbia Life Insurance Co., Cincinnati.

Mr. Hornick won the prize in a summer contest in competition with district agents, Mr. and Mrs. Hornick will leave on a ten-day trip next Monday afternoon.

WILBUR RUDDICK IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Wilbur Ruddick, 49, died at the Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, from heart trouble, from which he had suffered some time.

Mr. Ruddick, who was employed at the Smoke House, S. Detroit St., entered the hospital last Sunday when his condition became serious. He was born in Greene County and spent all his life here. He made his home for the past six years at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orie Harness, E. Second St. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Rosa Ruddick, Bowersville; three children: Mrs. Agnes Hogue, Springfield; Russell Ruddick, Dayton and Carroll Ruddick, Bowersville and one sister, Mrs. Roscoe Tidd, near Jamestown.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1 p. m., at the United Brethren Church with burial in Jamestown Cemetery. Friends may call after 6 p. m. Wednesday at the Need Funeral Parlors.

HEAVY VOTE MARKED PRIMARY IN COUNTY

Fair weather and a number of interesting local and state contests resulted in Greene County recording one of the heaviest primary votes in its history at Tuesday's election. Officials of the board of elections announce.

In one way, the ideal weather proved a slight drawback for the vote in the rural districts was not as heavy as it would possibly have been had weather conditions been adverse.

It is estimated that 5,000 Republican and 350 Democratic votes were cast, much the largest primary vote in recent years in Greene County.

Voters evinced a keen interest in the election and flocked to the polls in great numbers, particularly in Xenia city. No disorders of any kind were reported to authorities.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE LAW OF THE LORD IS PERFECT—Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son: but he that is a companion of riotous men shameth his father.—Prov. 28:7.

CUBA MAY EXPERIMENT

The National Board of Sanitation of Cuba has approved a plan for using convicts in laboratory experiments looking toward the cure of cancer. If the measure obtains the approval of the Cuban congress the world may see some interesting use made of men who have been condemned to death for murder.

In the Cuban proposal only cancer experiments are included. It provides that convicts condemned to death may be allowed to live if they voluntarily agree to permit themselves to be used in cancer experiments for 12 years. Those still living at the end of that period will be given their freedom.

The Cuban proposal is in line with suggestions frequently made. Convicts who have forfeited their lives under our laws, could be given the option of death or life imprisonment for medical and surgical research.

An association might be formed in this country to work for uniform state laws governing punishment for murder in the first degree. Every prisoner accepting life imprisonment instead of electrocution would do so with the knowledge that he was to be available at all times for medical and surgical research and experimentation.

Of course the experiments would have to be always under the supervision of the American Medical Association and similarly responsible high-grade associations or foundations. Many prisoners subjected to intelligent experimentation would live to ripe old age, and would never suffer serious inconvenience because of their service, involuntary perhaps, to mankind. Others would die of diseases instead of by electrocution, but since they had taken life they would be paying a just debt in a helpful way, instead of merely losing life as punishment.

WAILING TO THE WORLD

From his place of exile, Trotsky, that somewhat shabby hero of Communism, manages to make himself heard from time to time. Somehow, the material for another of his familiar outgivings has been brought out of Russia and put within the cover of a book. His "The Real Situation in Russia" is concerned mainly with his quarrel with Stalin, and must be regarded as a Russian political document. For the moment, at least, Joseph Stalin has overwhelmed Leon Trotsky, and Trotsky wails to the world about it.

Outside of Russia, the principal interest in Trotsky's book will be in his prediction that a world attack against Russia is "not only probable but inevitable." He has a great fear that capitalism will invade Russia to make for itself new markets. He is afraid the failure of the Reds in China and in the British general strike will hasten the day. He holds, also, that the "domestic difficulties in the Soviet Union" have encouraged the Soviet's foes.

Trotsky a few years ago was insisting that all the world was about to be made Communist by the "world revolution." His new predictions are about upon a par with his older forecasts. He may be a Communist politician of parts, but as a world prophet he grades around zero-minus.

The Way of the World

MIXED IMPULSES

A New York pickpocket with a record of 25 arrests and ten convictions was recently sent over the road once more. It is learned that he used the proceeds of his thievery to send one son to college and to keep another in high school. He had a father's heart and a normal father's impulse to do as well as he could by his children. Sense of moral responsibility and sense of justice seemed to be lacking. Some people seem to be born with mental parts missing. Unfortunately there is no general parts factory from which they can be supplied. Some are born with the wrong parts. They suffer all their lives from mixed impulses. They are deserving of their charity.

PERILOUS CHEMISTRY

Chemistry may disarrange our world of affairs in queer fashion. Chemists may one day turn lead into gold by re-arranging the atoms. By releasing new forces, finding new sources of power, they may junk gas and coal and the old means of power. They may make gold so cheap that the financial system of the world will be upset. Our belief in gold is a striking example of confidence in things unseen. We believe great quantities of it are laid away in the vaults of the United States treasury and sub-treasuries. On the presence of that gold rests the currency plan of the republic. Paper money is good because the gold is there—or rather because we believe the gold is there. Suppose somebody in the night changed it all to lead bars. If we didn't know about it what difference would it make?

BUSINESS AND PEACE

Sinclair Lewis who has had much fun throwing rocks at American business men, Rotary clubs, and various other manifestations of American life, shows that he has at least the makings of common sense after all. Writing from England, where he seems to have got his eyes a bit opened, he says:

"This modern English business man, though he looks more like an army officer than like a Chicago sales manager, though he lives in a secluded cottage with a tennis lawn instead of in a Park Avenue apartment, though he may not grind cigars in the corner of his mouth, is increasingly like the American business man in his every ideal and method. Personally, I am glad of it. I have a sneaking notion that closer alliances between British and American business men will do more to keep that peace without which our civilization will blow up than any pious aspirations of churches, pacifists, and radicals. I have been accused (even by the magnificent, the archducal International President of the organization) of saying nasty things about the Rotarians, but I assert that the growth of Rotary in Great Britain, where it already has hundreds of chapters, is more important for world tranquility than all the campaigns of the reformers put together."

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—Great oaks from little acorns grow, is no axiom to be despised. The fortune Joe Leblang is putting into the skyscraper that will brace up the heavens at Forty-third and Broadway, is founded upon the sale of theater tickets at cut rates.

Leblang got rich selling admissions to shows, good and bad, to penny-careful tourists and natives at less than the box-office prices. Years ago he began glancing complimentary tickets at theatres from shop keepers and others to whom they were given in return for window or billboard space, and selling them cheap. His office was his vest pocket. Then he began buying blocks of tickets to less popular shows at wholesale prices and reselling them at a reduction from the regular charge. The business grew, and eventually he bought the drug store in which he used a small stand, then the building, then half of the business block. He backed shows financially (as he still does) just in order to enlarge the supply of tickets that could be sold at cut rates.

Some of the producers fought him at first, and even opened rival cut-rate agencies. Eventually they recognized him as a power-factor in the prosperity of Broadway, for through cut rates he sent into theaters many persons that would not otherwise have gone. And "cut-rating" at Leblang's has saved many a show for prosperity. It was Joe's agency, that made "Abie's Irish Rose" the biggest hit the stage has ever had.

Now Joe Leblang's which occupies the basement of half a block, is world famous. Knowing well that sooner or later every show "gets into Joe's" at cut rates, many persons buy no tickets elsewhere.

The value of the land upon which the Leblang tower will cramp the clouds is $5,000,000. It has doubled in value in 20 years. Present tenants in street front shops pay as much as $25,000 a year rental for space no longer than a good-sized living room. The red Indians got $24 for the whole island.

Most of New York's big fortunes have been made in real estate rather than in manufacture, finance or trade. The Astor wealth, for instance, comes almost exclusively from rentals. Benjamin Winter, penniless immigrant 20 years ago, is rated at $50,000,000 today, as a result of dealings in Fifth Avenue land. The Chanin brothers came out of the World War without a penny. Real estate operations in New York have made them multi-millionaires in six or seven years. A. E. Lefcourt, still under 40, is among the richest men in a city where he has known want. Towering buildings in the garment district were his gold mines.

In summer New Yorkers take either to the country or to the roofs. The most popular dining places in summer are atop hotels or skyscrapers. And many persons have given up a country house in order to take one of the pent-houses of which every new skyscraper now has one or more. One simply isn't in or in New York, unless one has a pent-house. Usually pent-house owners are one or more additional residences hereabouts, the pent-house being used chiefly for what is called social purposes.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Honeydew Melon
Fried Chicken with Bacon
Potatoes au Gratin
Corn on Cob
Pepper Hash
Peach Bavarian Cream
Black Coffee

Whether you like summer weather or not, you must admit that it brings in its train many good things to eat, and at reasonable prices. Use the fresh fruits and vegetables freely in your daily menus. Serve part of them raw and you will find your health improved although the weather may be scorching.

Today's Recipes

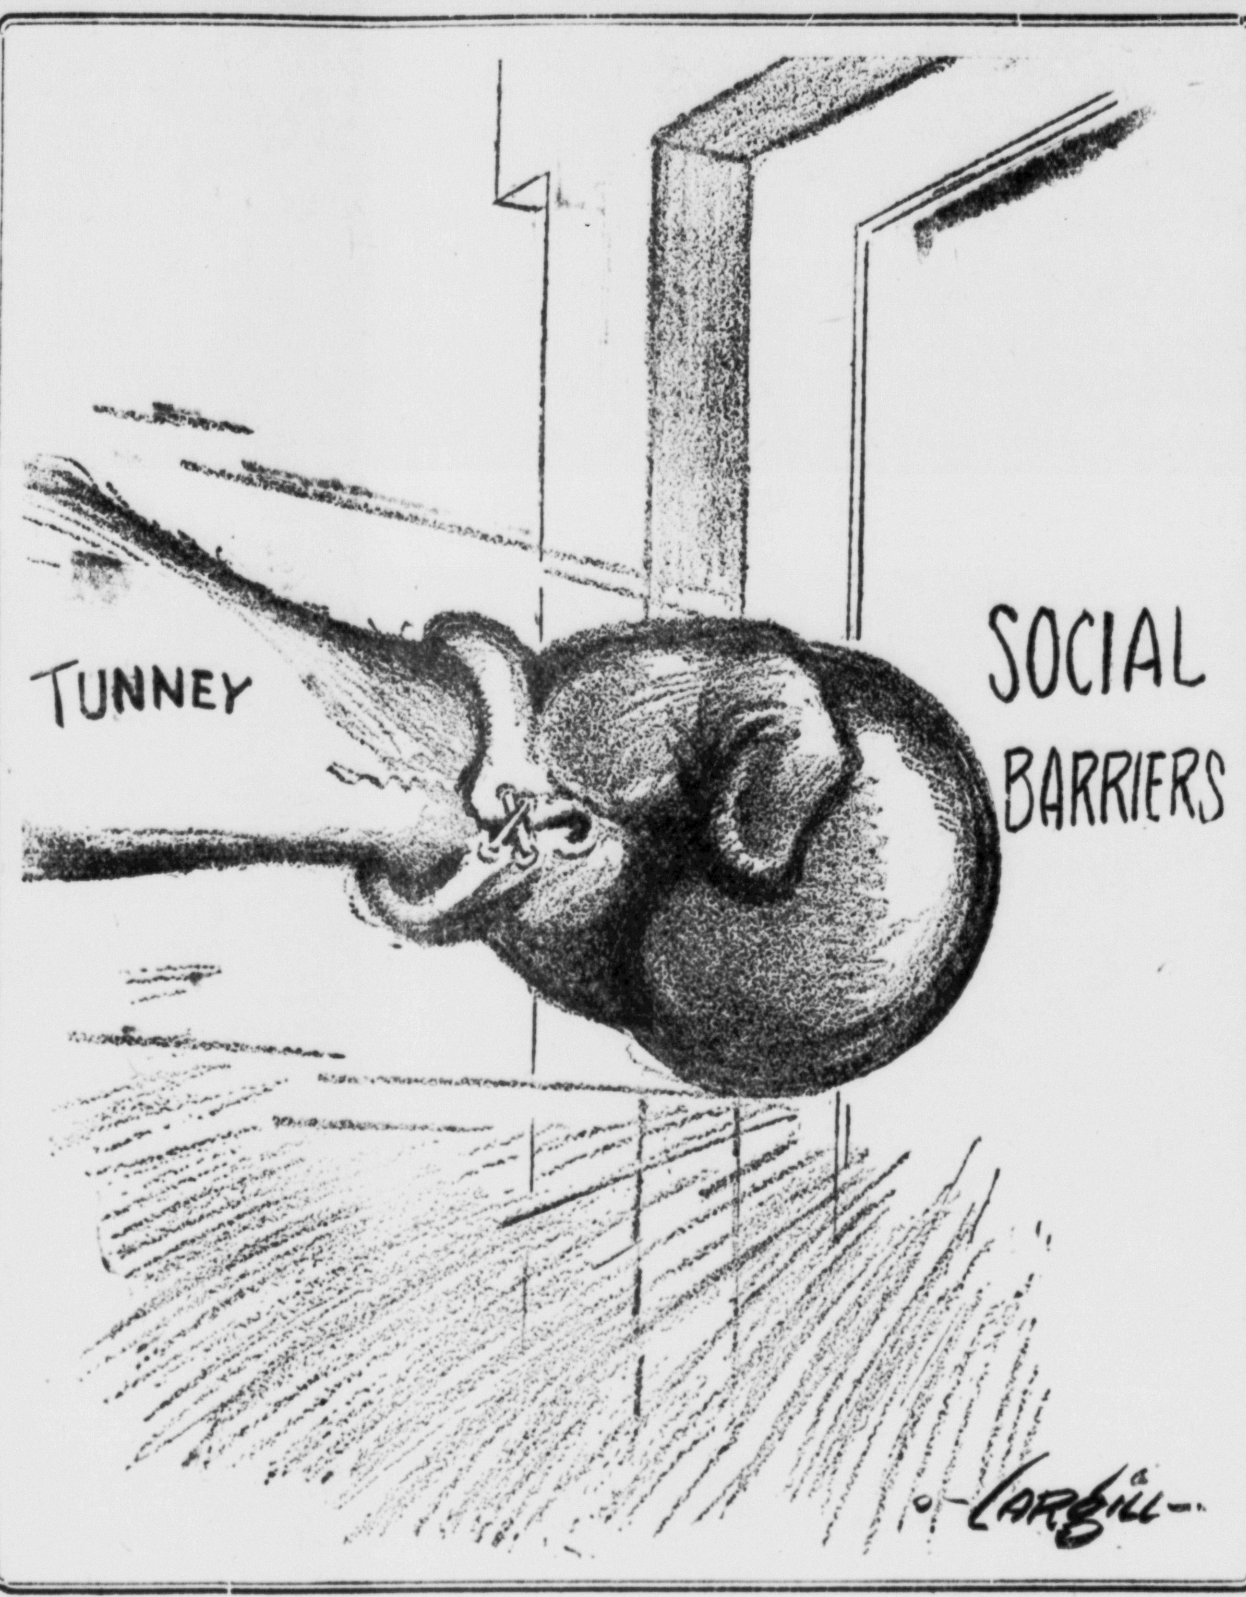

Fried Chicken with Bacon—Clean, singe and cut chicken in small joints. Wash and drain, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge well with flour. Heat fat for deep frying. Roll thin bacon slices to make curls and fry in deep fat. Lay aside to keep warm drop the chicken pieces in the fat and fry until brown. Place on paper to drain.

Potatoes au Gratin—Cut potatoes in dice. Make a cream sauce of one tablespoon each of butter and flour, blended with a cup of milk. Heat until thick and smooth. Add one-half teaspoon of salt and a pinch of black pepper, add potato and place in a buttered baking dish. Cover with bread crumbs and grated cheese and bake. If cooked potatoes are used they will be sufficiently cooked in fifteen minutes, but if you use raw potatoes allow them fifty minutes.

Corn on Cob—Put on a large pot of water and when boiling briskly add the ears of corn. Cook ten minutes and serve.

Pepper Relish—Chop together one green pepper, one red pepper two cups of cabbage, three sweet pickles, one small onion, cover with a cup of sweet pickle juice or one cup vinegar, one-half cup of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of black pepper and one teaspoon of celery seed. Serve on beds of lettuce.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Good Taste in Dress—Important to Beauty

Today I am going far afield in talking to you about that subject ever dear to a woman's heart—clothes!

Clothes may not make the woman any more than a frame makes the picture, but certainly the beauty of a painting may be lost by a horrible ornate and totally unbecoming and incorrect frame. Exactly the same holds true with clothes. The right clothes can make an ordinary woman chic, charming and attractive, and the wrong ones can make a pretty woman a fright!

I wish that it were in my power to explain just what charm is. I wish I could define it so exactly that every woman might develop it. But, if that plan were at all feasible, some one would have preceded me by years, and there would be nothing to distinguish the French woman from her American cousin except the language she uses.

In explaining, or rather, in trying to explain the smartness of the Parisienne, I am going to attempt the impossible. I am going to try and explain to you the way the French women think—the way she buys her clothes, and the way she wears them.

First of all, she plans her wardrobe for suitability. She will not wear a fluffy, easily creased gown to her daily labors. If she has not the francs to buy two gowns, she chooses a dark, sensible, straight-lined frock, and counts upon chic accessories to "dress it up." She knows line and color as American women know their a-b-c's. And one of the most important signs of her cleverness is her utter disregard of fads.

The little Parisienne does not buy for one month or two. She buys for a season's good wear, and another season's second best wear! She cannot afford to be intrigued by the conspicuous fads. She cannot afford to buy a green or a yellow or a purple gown because the couturiers are selling the ultra monde green and yellow and purple. She cannot afford to buy the frilly touches that are in today and hopelessly passe tomorrow.

She buys for becomingness. That is why her style is unsurpassing, and her ensemble as chic as her less enlightened sisters pay triple the price for.

In buying clothes, you should buy for style, for comfort and for value. Sleazy material, badly put together with ugly machine stitched hems is not going to look well, no matter how new it is or how correct it is—according to the latest style journals.

Watch the sales. America is a land of good value. If only you know how to look for it. I have been told that the life of a style in the better stores is never over two or three months. That is why, at the end of each season you will find amazing reductions and if you are clever, you will avail yourself of them.

And remember that "buy" is a good bargain if it does not enhance your beauty and suit your individuality as well as your needs.

Diet and Health

RUBBER REDUCING CORSETS

Some forms of rubber reducing corsets are very comfortable and do give a trim appearance to the figure. Extreme claims are made that there is a constant massage and an increase in the perspiration from them which will reduce the abdomen.

I don't believe there is a lot of truth in either of these assertions. You will get the same amount of massage from any corset that you will from the rubber corset. So far as perspiration goes you get with the rubber corset is due to the fact that it doesn't evaporate, and so accumulates. This in many cases causes an extreme irritation of the skin.

I approve of a good fitting weight around the abdomen because it does seem to help the corset for those who have excess fat from expanding so much and it does give a sense of support.

Peach Bavarian Cream—Soak one level tablespoon of gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water for five minutes and dissolve by standing the cup containing the mixture in hot water. To one cup of crushed fresh peaches add one tablespoon of lemon juice, strain the gelatin into the fruit, add one-half cup of sugar. When the sugar is dissolved set in a pan of ice water and stir until the mixture begins to thicken; then fold in one and one-half cups of heavy cream beaten until stiff. Turn into a wet mold and chill.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

An old fellow who had been practically a miser all his life died recently in our neighborhood and the friend who preached his funeral sermon spoke in highest terms of the man's exemplary career. He had always been safe and sane and saving.

After the funeral was over, people spoke in low tones, of his no-account brother, a life-long rover and spendthrift. They shook their heads and deplored that one man should go through life profitably without even saving enough for his own burial while his thrifty brother had such a lovely funeral.

But I couldn't help wondering if the no-account brother who had roamed over the world, with little thought of the morrow, hadn't had more fun and satisfaction in his life than the one who had concentrated his whole attention on saving money. I thought of the remark of the philosopher who observed that some live rich to die poor while others live poor to die rich.

Those who have been having a diet that is deficient in the mid-range elements and vitamins. This is because most of the foods that can be eaten raw—nuts, fruits, vegetables, milk—are the foods that liberally supply the vitamins and mineral elements. Such a diet stimulates the intestinal tract so that constipation with its resulting evils are overcome. It's a good diet for one who is overweight, for it stimulates the bowels and pastries which they are so fond of.

It is not necessary to go on an exclusive raw food diet to get benefit from it, however. You could have breakfast, say, and supper of raw foods, and the mid-day meal of cooked foods, as usual. Very many are benefited by this regime.

Precautions have to be taken that the fruits and vegetables are very thoroughly washed, so as to be free from disease producing agencies. That precaution, of course, should be taken when you eat raw foods at any time. We have an article on Balanced Diet which will benefit many. See directions above for obtaining it.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed stamped envelope and two cents in coin for each article to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, ten cents in coin with fully a s. e. must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters in care of this paper.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

NEW YORK.—Afred Smith's campaign committee is getting, rather belatedly, into action.

They say Smith does not consider a late start a disadvantage. Maybe not—if his crowd snaps into it "pronto."

They are not doing it. The fact is, politically speaking, Smith's campaign committee is mediocre. Even that is a compliment. "Among us girls," I'd call it away below mediocrity.

I do not mean that Smith is a mediocrity, but he was not on the job today.

Neither, I suppose, is John J. Raskob mediocre. Certainly he is not, from a financial standpoint. But otherwise? Assuredly he is not an outstanding personality. He "received" the newspaper men this afternoon. He is colorless. He is quite without "punch."

He is also without humor.

He had just been talking with George N. Peek, the farm relief man. He told us that one of the Democrats' main stunts will be to "define their stand on farm relief in language that everybody can understand."

Lord love us!—doesn't he know that all our foremost economists are in sanitariums already?—from trying to define their stand on farm relief in language that ANYBODY, including the economists, themselves can understand.

The ridiculous part of it is to sit in an office in the General Motors building, in the heart of Manhattan, and discuss agriculture.

And if you raise the point that John J. does not know what he is talking about, his come-back is that his wife is cultivating flax on a farm in Maryland. Gosh! I know a man whose wife cultivates orchids on a farm in Pennsylvania—under glass, of course—but he does not profess to be able to solve the agricultural problem "in language that everybody can understand."

What John J. Raskob had in mind may have been simple enough to HIM, but I do know that the newspaper men who listened to him retired to the "press room" at Democratic headquarters and fought like wildcats over the question of what he was driving at.

Just what might have been expected in what is happening.

New York City is trying to run Smith's campaign.

For instance, take his publicist. It is in the hands of a New York City newspaper man—a good one—Joe Canavan—but his theory evidently is that if he "sells" Al to the metropolitan district—where he's "sold" already—he is as good as elected. It is the old story there's little to the United States west of the Hudson river.

I heard, down in Washington, that Smith had a wonderful campaign organization.

I had a chance to come up and take a look at it, and I took advantage of it.

Assured, in advance, that it really was a marvel, it took several days for the idea to soak into me that it was a prune, like most campaign committees, if anything it was worse than the Hoover committee, in Washington. That it was going some, but I do not believe I exaggerate.

Smith has, in reality, some good boosters for him, like Mrs. Henry Moscovitz—I have met her and can testify that I think she might well be able to put him over, if given the opportunity—but the so-called "experts" have been chloroformed.

There are odds to be had against Al, I am aware.

Before I had been up here, and taken a look at his committee, I might have been tempted to advise myself of a few of them.

Now I do not know. He carries an awful handicap.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Better Let Man Woo Girl If All's To Be Well Later

As a general thing I believe the old rule holds true that men should be the wooers. Even those who insist women are the real wooers admit that it must be done subtly to be successful. The girls that openly chase their prey only succeed in scaring it away. But when a "feller needs a friend," when trouble comes to him, a girl friend should forget that there is such a thing as male and female, and only remember that she has a chance to prove her friendship by acting as she would to a girl friend in like circumstances.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl in my teens and I go with a crowd of boys and girls. There is one boy that I have always liked especially well, and he seemed to like me. Lately his family have gotten in a great deal of scandal and he has not been going with us since it started. He seems changed. He speaks to me but that is all. He is alone a great deal of the time. I feel sorry for him and I would like to know how to regain his friendship without seeming too forward. Blue Eyes."

Take your mother into your confidence, Blue Eyes, and with her consent, write him a little friendly note and invite him over for a certain evening. You might have another couple of your crowd over if you like, and show him every way that the trouble in his family hasn't changed him in your sight. I think if that was done a few times by different members of your crowd he would be helped through his trouble and made to feel that you are no fair weather friends.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a girl for about two years. We have been getting along very nicely until about two weeks ago. Her friend, who lives in another city, recently came to visit her. My girl really thinks I like this out-of-town girl, but I don't. Every time she writes to my girl she asks about me. I really love my sweetheart, but she threatens to break up with this girl don't quit writing about me. I am in a terrible predicament. Could you advise me what to do? A. S."

The next time you see your girl and she brings the matter up I would adopt an air of hurt. You may have to practice this a bit in private. I'd tell her that her want of faith hurts you more than you can say, and that as she does not trust you, if you can manage a fade away at this point it would be effective and leave the impression that you will love her to the death, but that if she wants you to call she had better write you a note of apology or phone and let you know and you will consider the matter. That will settle her, or miss my guess.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

Boastful Billy Boat-Bill

"Night Heron's cousin didn't seem a bit provoked at what wife said. I was afraid he might be. He said pleasantly:

"Can't you guess how I got my name? Then you haven't noticed my beak. Doesn't it remind you of two boats placed together, upside down? I have been told that the ridge on the top of my upper bill and the one on the lower bill look like heels. Although I belong to the Heron family most of my relatives have beaks that are long and sharp. But mine is different! That is why I thought so remarkable by my people. I am a remarkable bird—I admit it! You will think so, too, when you know me longer!"

"Well, of all the conceited birds I have ever met you are the worst!" exclaimed wife before I could prevent her. "No matter how fine I thought myself, I would have sense enough not to go about telling other folks. You really are not a bit good-looking only queer. I wouldn't like you for anything!"

"Because you couldn't," replied Billy Boat-Bill, not at all angry. "Go ahead. Say what you like! You can't hurt my feelings! I know I am a distinguished character in birdland and I had much rather be than than handsome. Plenty of birds are beautiful and nobody knows anything about them. They spend their lives in the depths of the forests while I pass my days traveling. When I tire of the sands of the shores, I move to the marshes and swamps, and there I live like a king. By the way, speaking of kings, I catch my food in almost the same way as does Kingfisher—you may have heard of that bird. I spy a fin cutting the water now. Watch me catch that fish!"

"Sure enough, Billy Boat-Bill did go about his fishing much as Kingfisher would have. A red jutting out over the water and upon this Boat-Bill hopped and stood there perfectly motionless."

"The fish was halfway down his beak when he first saw him!"

For a moment. Then, kersplash! Down he pounced upon the unlucky swimmer. About all he could see of the fish was its tail as it disappeared within his great bill.

"There," cried he. "I don't believe even Cousin Stork could have made a neater catch than that!"

"Cousin Stork?" "Wife looked at me and I looked at her. Was Billy Boat-Bill telling the truth? I made up my mind to ask the fellow, and must be admitted he had proved himself friendly, a straightforward question."

RESERVES FATTEN BATTLING AVERAGES IN GAME SUNDAY

Individual averages were fattened and the Reserves raised their team batting mark one percentage point to .310 as a result of sixteen hits obtained in last Sunday's melee with the Peebles Tigers.

Durnbaugh, leading hitter, hit safely three times in five attempts and raised his average to .424. Conley also recovered his batting eye and made three hits. Batting records follow:

LANG CHEVROLETS BEAT ROTARIANS

The Lang Chevrolet Co. softball team registered its seventh victory of the season by defeating the Rotary Club 23 to 12 in an American League game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Tuesday night.

Lang started on the mound for Langs but gave way in favor of Kersey after the Rotarians had amassed an 8 to 3 lead in the first two innings. Langs tied the score in the third and then proceeded to win out while Kersey was holding the opposition safe the remainder of the distance.

The victory placed Langs in a virtual tie with the Hudson-Essex nine for second place.

Kimber pitched for the Rotarians.

International News Service Special Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 15.—Louis Wolheim's ideas on the tender passion are as vigorously unsentimental as might be expected, if the man whom the stage knew as the inarticulate stoker of "The Hairy Ape," the torrentially profane Capt. Flagg of "What Price Glory," and the screen has known as the brutal, egotistical Scarce of "The Racket."

Wolheim, as I see him in life, is same if you walk in anywhere and seen two people embracing. They look silly.

He has, in addition to these qualities, a direct, incisive intelligence—inclusive that is, except on a few subjects where he has a tendency to be opinionated.

But he's a little touchy about love scenes.

I made this discovery from the vantage point of a comfortable chair—a beamed English ceiling above me—well-filled book shelves to my back and Wolheim before me weighing down a divan—Wolheim with shirt open at neck and two blunt fingers choking a cigarette.

"Have you ever played in a love scene?" I asked innocently.

"What do you mean—don't you think I could?"

We waited for more—I say "We" for those present included Lewis Milestone, Hollywood iconoclast and William Cameron Menzies, a young Scotch art director of United Artists.

"Sure, I played in a love scene," exclaimed Wolheim suddenly. "On the stage in 'The Fair Circassian.' I played the prince regent, afterwards George IV. I was supposed to use a lot of technique making love to a woman—the play lasted a week."

"I come pretty close to a love scene in the new Vilma Banky picture," he continued after the laugh subsided. "You can see I adore her. This business of a clinch at the end of a picture is all wrong dramatically. The dramatic part is the man wanting the woman—not getting her. That's anti-climax."

"You never see any of the mushy love scenes on the stage," he began again. "They're poison—they're laughs. These things are not meant to be done in public. When they are, they're funny. Look at the love letters published in the newspapers. Everybody laughs. You see, the readers are not in the mood of the person who wrote them or of the person the letters were written to. It is the

"What is a great lover?" he demanded aggressively.
"When I see a great lover on the screen I don't believe him. He isn't sincere. It isn't done that way. I never in my life heard of a woman who actually bent back over a guy's arm when he kissed her. It's all wrong."

KONJOLA BRINGS HAPPINESS INTO AFFLICTED HOME

Mother and Son Tell of Miraculous Results Achieved by Just a Few Bottles of Marvelous Konjola

A home of misery transformed, by Konjola into a home of health and happiness! That is the history of Mrs. Nancy Wisecup, and her son Mr. William Wisecup, 228 Dayton Avenue, Xenia, as told to the Konjola Man, explaining daily the astounding achievements of this new medicine at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., Xenia. Every day the Konjola Man is hearing most gratifying reports of the wonders wrought by this new medicine in cases—many of them of long standing—of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel afflictions, and in cases of neuritis, rheumatism and extreme nervousness.

"Konjola has made me well and happy," exclaimed Mrs. Wisecup. "I had a tubercular cough and became so worn down that I was compelled to go to bed. My appetite had vanished; what I did force myself to eat caused intense pains, belching and bile from indigestion, and heart palpitation and swelling of my hands."

"Nothing helped me; I had about given up hope of relief when Konjola was suggested by a friend who had taken this wonderful new medicine. I never expected to be well again, but three bottles of Konjola rectified all that ailed me."

My cough has disappeared—no more spitting of blood, and my stomach is in splendid condition. Do you wonder that I marvel at Konjola?"

Her son, William Wisecup, encouraged by the work of this new remedy in Mrs. Wisecup's case, took Konjola to relieve constipation, stomach and kidney ailments. He says:

"Many a day I could not go to work, and when I did go was able to do scant justice to the job. Rheumatism, indigestion and kidney trouble made life a misery and a burden. My mother insisted that I try Konjola; pointed out what it had done for her. To my amazement all pain is gone; can eat anything. And I took just two bottles. How I wish that every man who suffers as my mother and I did could know about Konjola."

Konjola is near you; relief is at hand. Here is a life-line thrown out to you; grasp it. Don't put off trying Konjola; every day you delay means just another day of suffering.

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

PUPILS OF SLAIN TEACHER RECALL CAMPUS POPULARITY

Miss Jennie Constance

By IONE QUINBY

Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 15.—A woman at whose hearthstone hundreds of careers were formulated and innumerable problems solved! A teacher who understood!

That is the eulogy of innumerable graduates of the Bradley Polytechnic Institute of Peoria and of young men and women friends of the unfortunate English teacher, Miss Jennie Constance, who was found brutally murdered in Evanston not far from the Northwestern university grounds, where she was taking a post-graduate course, preparatory to further study at Oxford next winter.

Loved by Many
"She was the confidante of students from the newest farm raised freshman to the self-sophisticated senior," Albert C. Fuller, an officer of the National Hotel Greeters of America, and a long-time friend of the slain school teacher, said. "She never was too busy to give advice and sympathy to the timid students who came to Bradley from the rural communities. As head of the English department of the institute Miss Constance had under her direction the listing of all new students for the theme conferences. In this way she personally came in contact with every student on the campus, and the enrollment was usually around 1,200 from all over the country.

Held Open House
"Her rooms always were open to all students. They came and went without the formality of ringing the doorbell, and she never was too busy to discuss problems with them. In no few cases the entire career of the student was formulated in these intimate chats with Miss Constance."

"Soon after her arrival at Bradley, in 1919, her reputation grew to be a tradition, and incoming students were sent to her by friends," Fuller recalls. "She was faculty advisor for several student clubs. She was an enthusiastic supporter of Bradley athletic teams and on occasions made trips with the teams, chaperoning groups of feminine rooters."

announcing

BRAND No. 1... "doesn't appeal to me"

BRAND No. 2... "we'll waste no time over this"

BRAND No. 3... "as smooth as a winter broadcast"

BRAND No. 4... "full of static... No. 3 wins!"

On the afternoon of July 24th, Graham McNamee, in the presence of responsible witnesses, made the blindfold test before the microphone. A camera and stenographer recorded the result.

"This is Graham McNamee speaking... broadcasting the results of the blindfold cigarette test. They are tying the blindfold around my eyes and are going to give me one each of the four leading brands to choose from... I am now smoking the first cigarette... The taste doesn't appeal to me. It's a bit harsh. We'll lay that one aside and try No. 2... No, that's worse than the first one. We'll waste no time over that... Well, here's No. 3..."

Ah, that's different! As smooth as a broadcast on a starry winter's night... Now, No. 4... something wrong with this one. Don't know what. Seems full of static. I'll choose No. 3.

"Ladies and Gentlemen of the Radio Audience, I have just learned that my choice [No. 3] is an OLD GOLD."

Graham McNamee

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

Why you can pick them... in the dark!

Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant... coarse top-leaves, irritating to the throat... withered ground-leaves, without taste or aroma... and the heart-leaves, rich in cool and fragrant smoking qualities. Only the heart-leaves are used in OLD GOLD.

GRAHAM McNAMEE, America's most popular radio sports reporter, recently reported the Tunney-Heeney fight, to which millions of radio fans all over the world listened.
